

FIFTEEN DESTROYERS PATROLLING

Coast From New York to Northern Point of Maine.

(Special to The Herald)
Newport, Oct. 13.—Fifteen destroyers are patrolling the Atlantic coast from New York to Maine for the double purpose of protecting American neutrality and to save the passengers of merchant ships. In the event of the latter being sunk by German submarines, it is understood that all the torpedo flotilla at Charleston, S. C., has been ordered out for similar duty. Ten destroyers will be held at Newport for any emergency that may arrive.

RIOTING BREAKS OUT AFRESH IN NEW YORK

Cars Are Stoned and Many Passengers Cut by the Flying Glass.

(Special to The Herald)
New York, Oct. 13.—Many persons were hurt in street car rioting in the Harlem district this morning. Ten cars were attacked and badly damaged. The worst conditions prevailed in the vicinity of 116th street where women took part in the rioting. With a suddenness that surprised the police and everyone 1500 men, women, and children gathered in the territory ranging from 115th to 118th streets. Through 116th street the motormen put their cars to full speed amidst a shower of stones and other missiles. Windows were broken and the passengers in the cars dropped to the floor to avoid being hit. Many were cut by the flying glass. The police reserves were rushed to the scene and the disturbance soon quelled.

Mr. Hughes plans to speak on the "Insistence of American rights."

BRITISH MAKE ADVANCES ON THE SOMME

Allies Will Continue Their Drive Despite Approach of Winter.

London, Oct. 13.—Gains were made by the British at two points on the Somme front last night. British forces near Guedecourt and Les Boches advanced and further progress was made northwest of Guedecourt. At the latter point 150 Germans were captured. It was announced today that winter would not stop the Allies' drive, but operations would be continued despite weather conditions.

AIR RAID OVER MAUSER GUN WORKS

Four Tons of Explosives Dropped By French and British Aviators and Believe Much Damage Done

(Special to The Herald)
Paris, Oct. 13.—A squadron of forty French and British aeroplanes made a raid over the great Mauser gun works at Obendorf-Ofenar in Germany. News of the raid was given out by the French war office today.

German aeroplanes ascended to give battle to the raiders and a big sky engagement followed. Six German cars were shot to earth. Four tons of explosives were dropped on the Mauser plant and it thought that considerable damage was done.

SURPRISED IN YORK BEACH POST OFFICE

James Pinchello of York
Beach Held Awaiting Action of Federal Authorities.

James Pinchello, aged 17, of York Beach, created no end of excitement at York Beach on Thursday evening. Early in the evening Mr. E. A. Talbot saw the shadow of a man in the post office and believing that he was there for no good purpose gave an alarm. The residents of the beach thinking that yegg men were in the building, armed themselves and quickly surrounded the building. When he realized that he was trapped Pinchello came out and gave himself up to Chief John S. Young. He claimed that he found the door open and entered the building but this is not believed. Pinchello will be arraigned before Judge Shaw in the Kittery municipal court at 5 o'clock this afternoon.

Pinchello has a bad record and was only recently released by the York County Court on a suspended sentence for breaking and entering Avery's fish market at York Beach.

UNKNOWN MAN KILLED BY STRIKERS

Standard Oil Company Equipped
Fleet of Motor Boats With Guns to Protect Its Property.

(Special to The Herald)
Bayonne, N. J., Oct. 13.—Another murder was committed this morning when an unknown man was shot by the oil strikers. Rioting continued throughout night and during the night upwards of 1000 shots were exchanged. Attempts of strike sympathizers to start fires along the river front has led to the equipment of Standard Oil fleet of speedy motor boats equipped with machine guns and armor. The American Federation of Labor today showed its hand in the strike when six men with interpreters acting under orders of Hugh Fraime, began the enrollment of the strikers. Up to the present the strikers have been without any organization, acting under their own leaders.

RED SOX WORLD'S CHAMPIONS AFTER DEFEATING BROOKLYN

Boston American Baseball Team Won Fourth Victory in the Fifth Game at Boston Yesterday

Boston, Oct. 12.—The 1916 World Series is now history with the Red Sox of Boston, champions of the American League, again the holders of the world's title. Before a crowd of more than 43,000 fans at the Braves Field the Red Sox defeated the Brooklyn Dodgers, holders of the National League championship, in a fast game this afternoon, winning 4 to 1. The visitors scored in the second inning on a hit, a sacrifice, an out at first and a passed ball. After that inning Brooklyn held the visitors helpless and was touched for but three hits. He fanned four of the batters and allowed only one free ticket.

Larry Gardner failed to get a hit off Pfeffer or Dell in the eight innings and the best that he could do was a sacrifice fly. Duffy Lewis was there with a triple and a single in three times at bat and Janvrin made a double and a single in four times up. These were the only hits for extra bases and Hooper, Shorten, and Cady were the only other members of the team to connect.

The Game

1st Inning.—For Brooklyn, Hi Myers was called out on strikes. Daubert made a swinging bunt and was thrown out at first by Cady. Stengel sent a grounder to Scott and the Boston man made his first error of the series, throwing the ball too high to Hoblitzel. Stengel was held at first, however, and no harm was done, as Wheat fouled out to Hoblitzel. NO RUNS, NO HITS, ONE ERROR.

For Boston, Hooper was thrown out at first by Cutchaw, and Janvrin retired at the same station by Mowrey. Shorten flied to Wheat. NO RUNS, NO HITS, NO ERRORS.

2d Inning.—Shore opened the second inning rather badly. He passed Cutchaw on four pitched balls. Mowrey wanted to take a look at the ball and Connolly told Shore to pass it in. Shore rather peevishly threw it past Mowrey to the grandstand. Connolly went after the ball, tossed it back to Shore and made Ernie throw it up to the batter for his inspection. Then the game went on. Mowrey sacrificed, Hoblitzel to Shore. Cutchaw went to second on the play and to third on Olson's out. Gardner to Hobby. He scored on a passed ball. Meyers was thrown out at first by Scott. ONE RUN, NO HITS, ONE PASSED BALL.

For Boston, Hobby was the first out, Pfeffer to Daubert. Lewis hit one to left field which took an awkward bound and shot over Wheat's head. It was good for a triple. Gardner flied to Wheat in short left and Duffy set sail for home. Wheat's throw to the plate after the catch went wide of the mark, and Duffy scored. Meyers gave Pfeffer a call-down for not getting in to relay, the throw or to cover the plate, where it looked as if there might have been a play on Lewis. After Mowrey had muffed Scott's easy foul fly the Boston shortstop popped up, one for Chief Meyers. ONE RUN, ONE HIT, ONE SACRIFICE, ONE ERROR. SCORE—BOSTON 1, BROOKLYN 1.

3d Inning.—For Brooklyn, Pfeffer struck out. Gardner threw Meyers out. Shore tossed Daubert out. NO RUNS, NO HITS, NO ERRORS.

Cady opened the Boston half with a liner over first which Daubert blocked by making a high jump, and so held the hit to a single. In attempting to

SAYS HOT WATER WASHES POISONS FROM THE LIVER

Everyone should drink hot water with phosphate in it, before breakfast.

To feel as fine as the proverbial fiddle, we must keep the liver washed clean, almost every morning, to prevent its sponge-like pores from clogging with indigestible material, sour bile and poisonous toxins, says a noted physician.

If you get headaches, it's your liver. If you catch cold easily, it's your liver. If you wake up with a bad taste, furred tongue, nasty breath or stomach becomes rankled, it's your liver. Sallow skin, muddy complexion, watery eyes all denote liver uncleanness. Your liver is the most important, also the most abused and neglected organ of the body. Few know its function or how to release the dammed-up body waste, bile and toxins. Most folks resort to violent cathartics, which is a dangerous, salivating chemical which can only be used occasionally because it accumulates in the tissues, also attacks the bones.

Every man and woman, sick or well, should drink each morning before breakfast, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, to wash from the liver and bowels the previous day's indigestible material, the poisons, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Limestone phosphate does not restrict the diet like calomel, because it can not siltivate, for it is harmless and you can eat anything afterwards. It is inexpensive and almost tasteless, and any pharmacist will sell you a quarter pound, which is sufficient for a demonstration of how hot water and limestone phosphate cleans, stimulates and freshens the liver, keeping you feeling fit day in and day out.

IS MAINE LOOKING FORWARD?

It All Depends Upon the Point of View—Here is the Record of Her Doings.

(From the Portland Express, Rep.)

The Springfield Republican, an administration paper, in an editorial attempting to minimize the effect of the Maine election, raises the question of whether or not Maine is a forward-looking state. It cites approvingly Samuel Undermyer's opinion that Maine voters are not students of national questions and says: "Maine has never been known as a forward-looking state."

Is Maine a forward-looking state?

Maine was the pioneer of state-wide prohibition.

Maine was the first state east of the Mississippi to adopt the initiative and referendum.

The people of Maine six years ago initiated and passed the direct primary when a Democratic Legislature refused to pass it.

The people of Maine, by an overwhelming vote of 4 to 1, have just adopted one of the most drastic 24-hour laws in existence.

Reference of a woman's suffrage amendment and a ballot reform act was blocked two years ago by the Democrats. The Republicans are now in power and pledged to both.

Maine has a public utilities commission.

Protects the Working Man

Maine has a strong workman's compensation act.

Maine was one of the first to abolish the railroad pass for public officials.

Maine has established a woman's reform schools for boys and girls and a home for feeble minded.

The state has taken over tuberculosis sanatoria.

The state has entered upon an ambitious program of road building.

Maine has the indeterminate sentence and parole system of handling prisoners, and probation officers for the municipal courts.

A start has been made on the establishment of institutions at which inmates may be cured of their weakness and one such farm is already in operation in Cumberland County.

Prisoners in jails are given outdoor work on the roads.

Lawyers, physicians, dentists, teachers and nurses are examined and registered by state boards.

Free education is provided up to and at all stores.

MAY IRWIN, CHAMPION COOK-STOVE CHAUFFEUR, PORTSMOUTH THEATRE, SATURDAY EVENING, OCT. 14.

including high schools, the state paying half the expense of the latter.

Free normal school instruction is given also very liberal terms at a state university.

There is a special system of state supervision for country schools and the organization of superintendence districts is encouraged, the state paying half the salary of an expert superintendent.

Both teachers and superintendents in all schools are required to pass examinations for state certificates for their grade.

School attendance is required to the age of fifteen and children under sixteen are not allowed to work without a certificate from the superintendent of schools that their school standing is satisfactory.

Care for Erring Children

While the state has no juvenile court cases involving children are usually heard in chambers and there are fine institutions for young malefactors without sending them to jail.

Men are required to support their families, the penalty for wilfully failing to do so being imprisonment.

The welfare of children is guaranteed by county agents for the protection of children.

There is a system of county agents for the prevention of cruelty to animals.

A system of competent medical examiners in every county for the investigation of cases of murder and manslaughter has been substituted for the historic coroner.

Maine's judicial system stands high with justices appointed for long terms, not elected on partisan tickets, and the judiciary is as free from political influence as the judicial system of any state in the Union.

Maine has a literacy test requisite to the right to vote.

Maine has an inheritance and corporation tax system.

Maine has amended its constitution to allow the taxation of intangible personal property.

If Maine has not been a forward-looking state, we should like to know in what important particulars it was failed to come up to the standard of the Springfield Republican. And we believe comparison of Maine with these states from which Woodrow Wilson draws his chief support, Maine will not suffer by such comparison.

Petrograd, Oct. 12.—Unbounded enthusiasm has been aroused in the press and among the public here by the clever escape from an Austrian military prison of General Korniloff, one of the most brilliant of the Russian military leaders.

The general had been confined as a prisoner of war in an Austrian camp, ment for more than a year, ever since the famous retreat of the Russians from the Carpathians, when Korniloff was severely wounded and captured. He managed in a clever disguise to make his way to Bucharest.

Petrograd, Oct. 12.—Unbounded enthusiasm has been aroused in the press and among the public here by the clever escape from an Austrian military prison of General Korniloff, one of the most brilliant of the Russian military leaders.

SIX HUNDRED ATTENDED ARMY AND NAVY BALL

Social and Financial Success Marked Concert and Ball for the Benefit of the New Home on Daniel Street

With more than 600 present the Grand Military Ball for the benefit of the newly erected Army and Navy Home was held last evening in Freeman's Hall. The entire building was festively decorated with bunting, flags and colored electric lights, the American National emblem playing a most conspicuous part in the decorative scheme.

At 8:00 o'clock the Navy Band, under the direction of Bandmaster Frank Zangari, U. S. N., rendered an enjoyable concert program while a reception was held on the floor. The balconies of the hall were filled to capacity, many remaining until the ball was over at 2:00 o'clock this morning.

A feature of the evening was the march, led by Captain William L. Howard, U. S. N., Commandant of the Portsmouth Navy Yard, with Mrs. Helen, followed by Chief Machinist's Mate James A. Brien, U. S. N., with Mrs. Howard, and 200 couples. Officers from the military and industrial departments from the yard, from the several ships now at the station, from the Naval Prison and Marine Barracks and from the Coast Defence station, were the guests of the committee. The ball was a brilliant success socially and financially.

At 11:00 o'clock an intermission was held during which refreshments of ices and cake were served by Caterer Andrew Jarvis. The dance program was in the form of a souvenir and included a copy of the signers of the Declaration of Independence and an extract from Washington's Farewell Address upon his retiring from the Presidency. The front cover of the order contained the list of the presidents of the United States.

The concert program:
1. March, "Flying Colors" Suppo
2. Overture, "Barber of Seville" Rossini
3. Cornet Solo, "My Heart at Thy Voice" Saint Saens
Mr. Lambertini

4. Fantasia, "Hungarian Comedy" Póányi
5. Minuet, "Celebrated" Paderewski
b. "White Man"
6. a. "Red Man"
c. "Black Man" Sousa

HER LOVE CAN'T CROSS A WAR FRONTIER

of Secretary Lane. Mr. Wilson, in his speech of acceptance, said that any interference with Mexico would amount to a denial to the Mexicans of "the right to any revolution at all which disturbed us" and to making "the emancipation of her own people await our interest and convenience." He declared he was willing to serve the ends of any revolutionary movement and unwilling to allow any possible consideration of American interests to interfere with the accomplishment of the great mission committed to Carranza. Secretary Lane, however, in an article recently published in the New York Evening Post, a staunch supporter of Mr. Wilson, said: "Since Carranza's recognition we have seen Americans who have gone into Mexico on peaceful errands murdered; we have seen our own towns upon the border raided and Americans slain on American soil. These outrages prompted the President to send our own troops into Mexico, and this course cannot be otherwise construed than as a recognition of the fact that the de facto government in Mexico recognized by ourselves and by other nations is not fulfilling the duty which one nation owes to another. We are in Mexico today, and how long we shall stay and how far we shall go depends upon the policy and power to keep the peace of the Carranza government, but we shall go no further than we have gone until every effort to secure effective Mexican cooperation fails." Every effort has failed, Carranza is no more competent or disposed to "fulfill the duty which one nation owes to another" than before, but the American troops are to be withdrawn.

JUSSERAND PRESENTS BILL:
The French Ambassador has just journeyed from Washington to Shadow Lawn to present to President Wilson one of France's bills against the United States for French losses in Mexico. The particular bill which Ambassador Jusserand presented to Mr. Wilson was for $60,000,000, that being the loss inflicted on Frenchmen as a result of Carranza's having arbitrarily closed the doors and confiscated the property of the Banca de Londres Mexico. The diplomatic representatives of the European powers long ago made it clear to President Wilson that their respective governments, recognizing the rights of this country to deal with Mexico as it saw fit, and to recognize Carranza if it wished to, would hold the United States responsible for any losses to their citizens and their property resulting from Carranza's high-handed and unlawful methods. When they are all presented these bills will reach an appalling total.

IN FEEBLE HANDS:—"We cannot say now in what particular sort of mess we shall find things in Mexico next." This statement, made by Gov. Hughes at Philadelphia, elicited from his audience cries of "That's right." No one can foresee what sort of mess the country will be in, but that there are grave complications ahead, growing out of both the Mexican situation and the European war, is certain and the question which the American people will have to decide November 7, is whether they want to trust the feeble hands now on the helm of the Ship of State to extricate them, or whether they want a real American for President, one with firmness and character and who will surround himself with a Cabinet composed of real men. Reports from all sections of the country seem to indicate the latter, greatly to the encouragement of Mr. Hughes' managers.

WHEN THE TACONY ATTACKED FLEET

Burning of Six Fishermen by Confederate Cruiser During Civil War Recalled by Recent Attack of German Submarine off Nantucket Lightship.

(Gloucester Daily Times)
The destruction of nine vessels by one or more German submarines off Nantucket on Saturday night recalls to the older of our citizens the excitement which the attack of the Confederate privateer Tacony made on the Gloucester fishing fleet in June, 1863, when six of the fleet were burned in the South channel, schooner Marengo, owned by George Steele, schooner Ripple, owned by William A. Pew, schooner Elizabeth Ann, owned by Fitz E. Riggs & Co., schooner Rufus Choate, owned by Pettingill & Cunningham, schooner Wanderer, owned by George Perkins & Son and her master Charles H. Pearce, and the schooner Ada owned by James Tower and James Tobin.

The first news of the raid reached town on Tuesday night, June 23, and was brought in by the schooner Cadet, Captain Williams, which narrowly escaped capture by the pirate. Capt. Williams reported that while at anchor in the South channel on Monday, he saw a barque bearing down towards them and having suspicions that it might be one of the piratical crafts which had been reported as cruising along the coast, he immediately hoisted up anchor, and there being a light wind, got his boats out and commenced towing the schooner. While thus engaged they saw several boats put out from the barque and board four other fishing schooners which were at anchor. A thick fog then shut them from sight, which gave Captain Williams an opportunity to escape, and a good breeze also sprang up which favored him, and he made the best use of this favorable auspices. That night he saw the light of four burning vessels.

Crews of Burned Crafts Paroled and Sent to Land

The following morning a despatch was received saying that the schooner Jubilee of Beverly had arrived there and reported speaking the schooner Florence of Gloucester that morning about forty miles southeast of Chatham light, which had on board 160 prisoners from the privateer barque Tacony which had captured the Florence the preceding day and bonded her and ordered her to New York with the prisoners. The Tacony had taken and burned six schooners belonging in Gloucester, and three ships, the Saratoga, Pangony and the one other whose name was not given in latitude 41.03 and longitude 68.15.

As the accommodations on the Tacony were badly cramped, there being on board in addition to the crews of the fishing vessels, those to the ships which had been destroyed, the captain concluded to liberate the Florence under bond and send her to New York with the captured men. They were all put under oath not to fight against the Confederacy, and with this patrol were allowed to embark. The Florence spoke with the schooner Western Light of Wellfleet off Gay Head which took off the Gloucester men, thirty-five in all, landing them at Hyannis, where they were kindly received and forwarded home, arriving here on Thursday afternoon.

One Captain's Statement of How the Men Were Treated

The statement of Captain Henderson of the schooner Marengo is a full description of how the fishermen were treated and in substance was that on Monday morning, June 15, while all hands were engaged in fishing, he saw a barque standing to the northwest and when she bore southwest, she wore ship. A thick fog which had set in caused him to lose sight of her, and he thought she was a merchantman bound in. Soon after the schooner was boarded by a boat's crew consisting of a lieutenant and nine men. Captain Henderson went to the fore to take the painter, and while making the boat fast, the lieutenant jumped on board and grasping him by the back said, "You are all prisoners of the Southern Confederacy," and drawing his revolver shouted that if any resistance was made, he would shoot them on the spot. Ten minutes was allowed the crew of the fishing boat to pick up their clothing, then they were conveyed to the barque and the Marengo was set on fire.

While the men were on the Tacony, three other fishing vessels were burned and their crews brought on board the barque where they were all uniformly well treated. Captain Henderson was invited into the cabin for supper and the captain of the barque treated him very kindly and offered him a lieutenant's commission if he would join the Confederate service, but this was of course, refused as the patriotism of the New England fisherman during all the trying days of the rebellion was as firm as the rocks which form its rugged coasts.

The captain of the barque stated he was playing the same game of the Yankees, as they had destroyed all his property and he was determined to do the same thing by them as far as lay within his power. He did not wish to take the life of any person but his orders were to shoot down the first man who offered any resistance, and he should carry them out if necessary. He admitted that he had destroyed four ships, making in all 17 vessels in 12 days. One night while he was cruising he was spoken by a United States gunboat, whose captain inquired if he had seen anything of the Tacony.

A directors' meeting of the Cape Ann Mutual Fishing Insurance Company was called Wednesday morning for the purpose of devising some means for the protection of the fishing fleet. A committee of three, consisting of Messrs. Joseph Q. Proctor, Captain Sylvester Cunningham and Epes W. Merchant, were chosen to visit Boston and have an interview with Governor Andrew, who advised them to telegraph to Washington which they did. Subsequently they visited the navy yard at Charlestown, and were informed by the commodore that all of the available vessels were on duty, but he would do all in his power to secure suitable vessels to be sent in search of the Tacony, and for the protection of the fishing fleet. Another spirited meeting was held in the evening and a committee comprising Captain Gorham P. Low, Joseph Q. Proctor and Benjamin H. Corliss, were appointed to serve as a committee to visit Washington and to present a memorial asking for two small steamers to be commissioned for special service, one to cruise from Cape Cod to Cape Canso, and the other in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, for the protection of the fishing fleet during the season.

Schooners Thomas Woodward and William S. Baker were armed and manned by crews of fishermen and put in commission to search for the pirate, but failed to discover her whereabouts.

INVENTS NEW WEAPON ON SPUR OF MOMENT

London, Oct. 12.—For a remarkable bombing feat, Lance Corporal A. Engleish of the Northumberland Fusiliers, has been awarded the Distinguished Conduct Medal. When the Germans exploded a mine he threw 103 bombs at them from an exposed position. He also invented a new projectile on the spur of the moment. He threw six full boxes of bombs at the enemy, first taking the pin out of one of the bombs. The explosion of the one bomb would blow the box to pieces and scatter the other bombs, which would explode a few seconds later. This feat gained the mine crater for the British.

YOU'RE BILIOUS! CLEAN LIVER AND BOWELS TONIGHT

Don't stay headachy, sick, or have bad breath and sour stomach.

Wake up feeling fine! Best laxative for men, women and children.

Enjoy life! Remove the liver and bowel poison which is keeping your head dizzy, your tongue coated, breath offensive and stomach sour. Don't stay bilious, sick, headachy, constipated and full of cold. Why don't you get a box of Cascarets from the drug store and eat one or two tonight and enjoy the sweet, gentlest liver and bowel cleansing you ever experienced. You will wake up feeling fit and fine. Cascarets never gripe or sicken like salts, pills and calomel. They act so gently that you hardly realize you have taken a cathartic. Mothers should give Cascarets, sick, bilious or feverish children a whole Cascaret any time they act thoroughly and are harmless.

HUGHES BEGINS TO SHOW TRUE CAMPAIGN FORM

—Clarksburg, W. Va., Oct. 7.—Republican Nominee Hughes swung westward through West Virginia today with his indictment of the Democratic policies. He was scheduled for four speeches at Clarksburg, Parkersburg, Huntington and Charleston. In each of these he planned to direct the fire of his criticism mainly against the Democratic failure to live up to the pledge of the 1912 platform, promising protection of American lives abroad.

Speaking here early today he caustically assailed the administration for the handling of the Mexican problem, and solemnly warned his auditors of the evil days which he said were bound to come, if, after peace among the warring European nations had been arranged, the United States was forced to compete in world commerce under the Underwood tariff bill. He repeated his bill of particulars against the failure of the Democrats forcefully to settle the question of American rights and bespoken support of the Republican principle of a protective tariff.

Hughes' voice was strong and clear—probably in the best shape it has been since he started to "come back" in August. Today, for the first time since he assumed the responsibilities of a presidential candidate he began to develop real orator's gestures and to pull little tricks of speaking of which Theodore Roosevelt would be proud. He hauled out to view here today, a first class uppercut swing in driving home his pungent criticism of the Adams-on eight-hour bill. He mixed in a little slang—about "coming back" and "what do you know about that?"—in his speeches.

MAY IRWIN'S LAUGHTER.

"He laughs best who laughs last," and the above series of facial expressions tell the reason, or the most of it, why May Irwin, the much beloved comedienne, is rated the richest actress of the American stage. She is laughter commercialized and humanized, too.

"I am an optimist, and no turn of misfortune can make me anything else," she said recently. And this has been the secret of her public success. "My mother taught me to get up singing and to go to bed the same way, and it's a God-given habit, because you can't sing and carry a grouse at the same time."

Miss Irwin will bring her ninety-nine varieties of laughter with her for the performance of her new comedy, "33 Washington Square," to the Portsmouth Theatre, Saturday night, Oct. 14.

Hollis's Come-Back.

We have a "little stranger in our midst." The prodigal political senator has returned. "Henery" Hollis, one of the Democratic senatorial ornaments of the present administration, has appeared on the local political horizon. The music of his clarion tones is again heard in the land of his nativity.

Nearly four years ago he was elected United States senator, after a contest that left a bad taste in the mouths of the people. Since that time there has been a vacant seat in the ranks of Democracy at home and a vacuum in the United States senate.

"Henery" was in the senate a long time before he was discovered. One day that august body was disturbed by an unusual noise over in the furthest recess of the Democratic side of the chamber. From a rear seat, down behind a desk, the Democratic prodigy was found. He was making a speech daring United States Senator Jacob H. Gallinger to become a candidate for re-election. Then he disappeared again. This Democratic "Charlie" Ross was supposed to have started for New Hampshire to "clean up" the Hon. Jacob. But he got off the trail. They found him some time after Gallinger had been triumphantly elected, somewhere up in the wilds of Newfoundland, murmuring "Where am I?" Time and time again he has been advertised to orate to the faithful at state gatherings, but when they assembled around the festive board there was nothing but ozone in the seat reserved for the Hon. "Henery."

But the lost political child has been found. He has loomed up on the horizon of Derry. He was in tow of "Tom" Madigan, and Madigan says he found him out in Chicago, where he is one of the hospital nurses of the Wilson western campaign headquarters. "Tom" says that Hollis is "loaned" for a week and then is going back to Chicago. It strikes us that Hollis in Chicago is in the right place at last. It is known as the "Windy city," which speaks for itself.

We welcome "Henery" back home, notwithstanding the fact that his visit resulted in an atmospheric and climatic spasm. His sudden return turned over the universe, caused a startling and surprising chill, which made the good people of New Hampshire shed their thin 'uns and don their winter flannels and furs. While we regret the trip of "Henery" resulted in a wild leap from balmy summer into early winter, yet we are so pleased to have him with us again that, in our joy, we have overlooked our "gooseflesh" and forgot all about our chills and shivering.

The return of "Henery" was timely and essential. He came just at the right moment and his coming fills a long felt want. With Noone given the "Kibosh"; with Samuel Delay enjoying his Rip Van Winkle siesta; with "Our Gene" abandoned in the Philippines and soon to be cut off from his political job; with T. P. W. Rogers in sackcloth and ashes, repenting of his political sins; with Willis muzzled and tied in the basement of the postoffice building by the halo of his appointment as postmaster; with Patrick Henry Sullivan retired and removed from the contaminating political influences of Hanover street, and "uplifted" to the dizzy altitude of his new office in the Amoskeag bank building, which brings him much nearer heaven than ever, we have been minus a "horrible example" to display for political purposes, during the present campaign in New Hampshire.

But as long as our "Senator Henery" has come back, just even for a week's visit, our political joy is now complete. It was all that was needed to make the Republican majority overwhelming, the victory certain. He can now return to Chicago and do his worst.

The reports that come from Illinois are that that state will give anywhere from 150,000 to 300,000 for Hughes and Fairbanks. This may explain, possibly, why "Henery" is engaged in political browsing in the state of Abraham Lincoln. Wilson and the leaders doubtless knew he could not do any further damage there.—Mirror.

The Hollis Close Corporation.

Senator Hollis represents one county upon the executive committee of the Democratic state committee, his private secretary, Michael B. Griffin, represents another, and his law partner, Robert C. Murchie, is the secretary of the committee. Hard to find a closer corporation than that.—Monitor.

Complaints come from many cities and towns of rowdyism on street cars, particularly at night, when life is made miserable for respectable passengers. It seems as if there ought to be a remedy for this evil. A few jail sentences might possibly prove more efficacious than small fines. That such conditions prevail as are frequently reported is not creditable to the railroad and civil authorities.

Dartmouth college now has a President Hopkins. May his career be as extended and illustrious as that of his distinguished namesake who for so many years presided over Williams.

Where Birdmen Are Needed
(From the New York Sun)

The War Department is anxious to learn the addresses of American aviators. The Navy Department is slightly enough without them.

The Wane of the Referendum

Oregon voters are not running in their usual form this year. Only seventeen referendum laws are on the November ticket. In addition to national, state and local candidates. The slump of 40 per cent in referendum indicates a painful shortage of entrants in the speedway of righteousness.

New York Not To Be Denied
(From the New York World)

Is the milk strike, like the car strike to settle itself? The developments in either case make it appear that to undertake to hold up New York's supply of an article of food is as large a contract as undertaking to deprive it of transportation.

On the Way to the Graveyard
(From the Louisville Evening Post)

In a few years the whole artificial device for making the world all over will be abandoned, and woman suffrage will be interested in "the graveyard of dead issues," side by side with free silver, the recall of judges, the anti-Masonic crusade, secession, the fugitive slave law, the reconstruction act, the force bill, Mormonism, Cook's Arctic invasion, the repudiation of the national debt, the payment of the national debt to greenbacks, New England Federalism, the resolution of '93, Know-nothingism and Liberal Republicanism, not to mention that form of progress that it, blood and died at Armageddon.

A Satisfying Certainty
(From the Boston Transcript)

While Mr. Wilson's defenders in the east are endeavoring to win him votes by denouncing Mr. Hughes as "the Kaiser's candidate," his campaigners in the west are trying to curry favor with voters of German ancestry by denouncing Mr. Hughes as the tool of an anti-German conspiracy, at the head of which are Theodore Roosevelt, Elihu Root and Henry Cabot Lodge.

The Vulnerable Submarine

That the submarine does not "command the sea" is once more proved by the sinking of two German submarines by a Russian torpedo boat on Monday.

The Rights of Mankind
(From the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, Rep.)

"We want always to hold the force of America to fight for the rights of mankind, not for the rights of property," said President Wilson in his speech at Omaha. This is another of those fine sounding phrases which the President loves to utter and which invariably reveal the impracticability of his character. What does he mean by it? What are the "rights of mankind" for which he would reserve exclusively the fighting powers of the nation? And what are the rights of property, for which he would not fight? "Mankind" is a broad term. It covers the entire human race. To fight for humanity is an inspiring thought, to be sure, but how are we to fight, where are we to fight, and whom are we to fight in a cause restricted to that principle? Under what circumstances could we wage a war for the rights of mankind, and not for the rights of property? Even life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness are dependent upon property, except among savages, for the application of the term "property" is not limited to estates, but includes possessions however small. A loaf of bread is property, involving all the rights of property. To talk about a force held exclusively for the rights of mankind and not for the rights of property is nonsense. Yet in this one particular Mr. Wilson has been consistent. In all his international dealings, the rights of property the property of American citizens have been ignored, or treated with utter contempt, while he talked glibly of intangible "rights of mankind." What this country needs now is a President who will stand by and, if need be, fight for American rights.

Mr. Ford's Two Recipes
(From the Portland Oregonian)

It is doubtless with confidence born of the success of his wholly original conception of the way to stop war that Henry Ford now points out the way to start war.

War is one of the oldest problems that Henry tackles. Recipes for stopping it or recipes for starting it come to him just like that. To stop war first adopt a slogan, then send a shipload of preachers and schoolmasters to the warring countries to shout it. To start a war fall to elect Woodrow Wilson.

These are the famous Ford recipes. One of them, as everybody knows and as has been herein indicated, has already been tried. How the Ford peace expedition—using "peace" to define its purpose, not its deliberations—plucked the soldiers out of the trenches by Christmas will be recalled by even the first-grade pupils in the Government's Americanization school.

Now we have his recipe for starting a war. It ought to be just as good as the one for stopping war. The only doubt that can be raised is in regard to the genuineness of the Wilson mechanism. Anything that has as many reverses as it has forward speeds is likely to carry an auto-maker off his feet.

A Harbinger of Peace?
(From the New York World)

Advertisements appear in New York for a certified accountant "qualified to take charge of reorganization of large industrial plants in Europe." Matters of less intrinsic significance have been accepted as harbingers of that peace which the whole world will eagerly welcome.

What To Do in the Submarine Case
(From the Boston Transcript)

If Mr. Wilson must write another note to Germany, instead of backing up any of the many he has already sent, it is respectfully suggested that he might appropriately despatch a note in some such terms as these:

"Vessels of neutral ownership have been destroyed, along with vessels of belligerent ownership. Their passengers and crews have been vouchsafed the poor security of being allowed to take to the ship's boats before the ship was sent to the bottom."

"The Government of the United States has been very patient. It has been painfully evident to it that the position which it took at the very outset is inevitable, namely: The use of submarines for the destruction of an enemy's commerce is of necessity, because of the very character of the vessels employed and the very method of attack which their employment, of course, involves, utterly incompatible with the principles of humanity, the long-established rights of neutrals and the sacred immunities of non-combatants."

"If it is still the purpose of the Imperial Government to prosecute relentless and indiscriminate warfare against vessels of commerce by the use of submarines, without regard to what the Government of the United States must consider the sacred and indisputable rules of international law and the universally recognized dictates of humanity, the Government of the United States is at last forced to the conclusion that there is but one course it can pursue."

"Unless the Imperial German Government should now immediately declare and effect an abandonment of its present methods of warfare against passenger and freight-carrying vessels, the Government of the United States can have no choice but to sever diplomatic relations with the Government of the German Empire altogether."

Does somebody reply that such a note would be too harsh; that it would be inconsistent with the policy by means of which Mr. Wilson has "kept us out of war," and that it is ungenerous, if not unparliamentary, to embarrass our State Department in its delicate and important work by even suggesting such an utterance? Perhaps, if the suggestion were made lightly and in an insufficient authority.

But the fact is that what we have suggested is simply a quotation from President Wilson's own note to the German Government of six months ago. It expressed in his own words the President's estimate of the Nantucket raid, to every detail of which it applies with literal exactness. It sets forth his conception and his determination as to what the policy of the United States should be and must be in precisely such a case as that which is now presented. It contains the warning which he gave to Germany of what this country would do if Germany should continue to do the very thing which she has continued doing and which she has just done almost within sight of our shores and actually within sight of vessels of our navy.

Did Mr. Wilson mean what he wrote in April last? Does he mean it now? If not, what has changed his opinion? Why does he now condemn that which six months ago he found "utterly incompatible with the principles of humanity, the long-established rights of neutrals, and the sacred immunities of non-combatants?" Or if he has not changed his opinion, but today stands by what he wrote last spring, what is he going to do about it? According to his own deliberate and carefully measured words he has "no choice but to sever diplomatic relations" with the Government of the German Empire altogether."

Or did he say in an aside to the German ambassador "concerning these brave words what with his approval his favorite Secretary of State said concerning another notable utterance that it was not to be taken seriously, but was just banter, for home consumption?"

A Pound of Flesh—No More
(From the New York Commercial)

In prosecuting a submarine campaign at the very gateways to our ports Germany is keeping within the strict letter of the law, but like Shylock, must take no more than her pound of flesh. It is a dangerous game to suit so close to the wind on a lee shore. The United States would blaze with fury if the commander of a submarine within sight of our shore violated the pledge given by the German Government on May 5. The sea is free to all three miles from land but there are legal rights the exercise of which is not diplomatic.

EUROPE'S WAR PROVES PROTECTION IS RIGHT

Elihu Root Shows that the Republican Party's Cardinal Principle Has Won the Only Decisive Battle of the Contest.

WE PROSPER BECAUSE THE HOME MARKET IS OUR OWN

When Peace Comes and Foreign Commercial Considerations Look Hungrily Toward America, We Shall Deserve What Happens to Us if Provision is not Made Against Disaster by a Tariff Quite Different From the Underwood Folly.

There is one particular subject with which the U. S. must deal in order to meet the revolution in production and trade which will accompany the close of the great war. That is the tariff. I think there is very general agreement upon that. When the demand for supplies to the armies in the field has ended, great numbers of men will return to productive employment in Europe and great numbers of foreign troops will be thrown out of employment here and will have to find other work. Europe will have little money and be heavily in debt. She will be under strong compulsion to pay her debts by making and selling goods. She will be on a basis of strict economy and high organization and she can make and sell cheaply. The U. S. will have an abundance of money and vast purchasing power. Our market, has always been attractive to European producers. It will be far more attractive after the war, it is highly probable that even England will resort to a protective tariff, so that our production will meet protective barriers in all foreign markets. What are we going to do then? We must do something. We must protect ourselves or we shall become the dumping ground of the world and our workmen will beg in the streets.

Even the Democrats have seen that something must be done, for they have provided a tariff board to ascertain and report the true facts to which a tariff law is to be applied. In Mr. Taft's administration the Republicans provided for a tariff board to report to the President and it was appointed and doing excellent work. When the Democratic house elected in 1910 came in they starved it out of existence by refusing appropriations. In the last session of the last Congress the Republicans passed through both houses a new bill for a tariff board to report to Congress. There were some slight differences of opinion as to the two houses which were agreed upon in conference, but the Democrats filibustered against the final conference report and so killed the bill. So the tariff board was dead—slain by the Democratic party. It has now been resurrected by that party because they see that something must be done about the tariff when the war closes. Now we can all understand that if the country wants a tariff for revenue only they may put the making of it in the hands of the Democratic party. But can any sane man contemplate that party making a protective tariff in the first place they can't do it honestly. They don't believe in it. They were born and bred in a different faith. They have been saying so long that protection is an abuse of power and an abomination that they can't reconcile themselves to a protective tariff and they regard the Underwood tariff as a model. That is what we are to have if the Democrats go back—the Underwood tariff still, with perhaps here and there a slight modification regarding dyo stuffs, and some other articles which can be shown to gentlemen from Missouri and elsewhere. Well, if there ever was a clumsy, ill conceived, half-baked law, it is the tariff which bears Mr. Underwood's name. We had already discovered what its effect was when the war in Europe began.

COLLEGE CLUB

Holds First Meeting and Outing at Ragged Neck.

The College Club held their first meeting and outing at Ragged Neck on Thursday with eighteen members present. The day was very pleasantly passed by those present. At noon an appetizing lunch of lobsters and other shell fish was served. The officers of the new club are: President, Mrs. William C. Walton; vice president, Miss May Heflinger; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. E. W. Scott.

Many mills and factories were closed pre-empting life a part of the time. Great number of laborers were thrown out of employment and the market for American products was still further reduced by the destruction of their purchasing power. Enterprise faltered, discouraged and apprehensive of the future. New enterprises were no longer enlarged. Old plants were no longer enlarged. The Underwood tariff had already failed when the war in Europe began. That war furnished and continues to furnish to American production the most absolute protection because it has no great a decree stopped production in Europe. So long as the war lasts our producers have practically no competition in our home market, for Europe does not make the goods she sold here. At the same time while the war lasts our producers have an enormous market in Europe for the things that Europe can't produce in sufficient quantities. When the war is over that condition will cease and we shall deserve what happens to us if we do not provide against that time by a tariff quite different from the Underwood tariff and made by men who do not consider a tariff for revenue only, an article of religious faith.—From the speech of Elihu Root, delivered at Carnegie hall, New York City, October 5, 1916.

ODD FELLOWS AND REBEKAHS
ELECT OFFICERS

William W. Cotton is Again Elected Treasurer of Grand Lodge, I. O. O. F.

Laconia, Oct. 12—The 32d annual session of the New Hampshire Grand Lodge I. O. O. F. opened in Knights of Pythias hall here yesterday morning with a large attendance.

Grand Master George M. Pike of Lisbon presided. Mayor George P. Munsey welcomed the guests to the city. One hundred and twenty past grands received the Grand Lodge degree.

The report of Grand Secretary Frank L. Way of Manchester showed a loss of 65 in membership and a gain of 217 in the Rebekah branch. The total membership of the state numbers 15,529 men and 10,975 women, showing one "Odd Fellow" to every sixteen persons in the state's entire population. The financial standing of both branches shows a gratifying increase.

These officers were elected: Grand master, Frank M. Cilley of Exeter; deputy grand master, Justin A. Emery of Rochester; grand warden, John R. Spring of Nashua; grand secretary, Frank L. Way of Manchester; grand treasurer, William W. Cotton of Portsmouth; grand chaplain, the Rev. William H. Getchell of Pittsfield; grand representative for two years, Charles S. Emerson of Milford; grand representative for one year, George W. Pike of Lisbon.

The officers appointed by Grand Master Frank M. Cilley are: Grand marshal, Louis C. Shaw, Warner; grand conductor, Arthur R. Jones, Framingham; grand guardian, Ernest C. Dudley, Concord; grand herald, Charles O. Dahl, Conway.

The officers were installed by the retiring grand master.

The grand master appointed the following district deputies:

Robert Snodgrass, Berlin; Charles O. Dahl, Conway; Clarence S. Cole, East-Rochester; Hurd T. Stevens, Dover; William K. Tozier, Exeter; Howard P. King, Deerfield; Louis S. Harrison, Milford; Leon D. Tilton, West Manchester; Frank Aldrich, Saco; Hartley F. Simpson, Tilton; J. P. Quinby, Meredith; Leon B. Proctor, Hillsborough; Willis S. Garfield, Marlborough; Samuel E. Hubbard, Walpole; Henry N. Hurd, Claremont; George H. Thompson, Lebanon; Milo G. Parnham, North Haverhill; John T. Twombly, Whitefield; Charles S. Drew, West Ossipee.

The special guests of the convention were C. S. Maun, deputy grand master of Canada; W. S. McCormick, past grand representative of Quebec; Charles E. Jackson, grand secretary of Portland, Me., and W. S. Hutchins.

son, grand secretary of Hartford, Conn.

The Rebekah Assembly elected yesterday the following officers: President, Mrs. Margaret H. Waldron of Burnington; vice president, Mrs. Adelle B. Palmer, Berlin; warden, Kato B. Davis of Marlborough; secretary, Miss Margaret L. Sargent, Woods-ville; treasurer, Mrs. Clara S. Palmer, Manchester; marshal, Emma C. Wentworth, East Rochester; conductor, Mrs. Alice E. Tripp, Short Falls; chaplain, Mrs. Lottie E. Sanborn, Laconia; I. G. Gertrude E. Couch, Manchester; O. G. Miss Hattie L. Woodman, Ashland. The officers were installed by the retiring president Annie P. Rogers.

Members of the Past Grand Representatives' association of New Hampshire held their annual banquet at a local hotel Wednesday evening. The grand officers of the New Hampshire I. O. O. F. and the New Hampshire Rebekah Assembly were guests.

COUSINS OF THE
LATE JUDGE HOBBS
ENTER APPEARANCE

Cousins of the late Judge Nathaniel Hobbs of York county, on his mother's side, have entered an appearance to the will of the late venerable jurist, which was presented for probate at the session of court held at Biddeford a week ago.

In his will Judge Hobbs says: "I give and bequeath to the children living of my late cousin, Francis M. Attnell, one hundred dollars each, viz: Francis M. Attnell, Mary A. Dinmore, Teresa B. Engler, Edward A. Attnell, Margaret DeGouvy, and Lydia M. Young, all of New York city."

The judge's mother was Mrs. Nancy Hodgdon, who died about 25 years ago, and left an estate variously estimated at between $49,000 and $50,000.

The contestants are the grandchildren of the ancestor of Judge Hobbs' mother.

The law firm of Sawyer, Hardy, Stone & Morrison, with offices at 817 Exchange Building, Boston, are counsel for the respondents.

"HYPOCRITES" AT COLONIAL

With a frankness that causes one to gasp, yet as truthfully as truth itself, "Hypocrites" the great picture screen by Lois Weber, now at the Colonial is astonishing great crowds daily.

Based on indubitable facts, the picture was needed, therefore it was made. Millions of people have seen it. Not one really sincere adverse criticism has been made concerning it.

It deals with a phase of social life fortunately little known in Portsmouth, but still near enough to make the subject vitally interesting to our towns people.

Courtenay Foote is the leading actor in this screen classic, surrounded by a cast fully fitted to fill the roles assigned them.

It treats the matter of hypocrisy in society in an allegorical manner and some of the scenes are wonderful examples of the scope of camera work at the present time.

There is a great fundamental truth underlying the daring and frankness of the pictureization averting any suggestion of impropriety.

Charlie Chaplin in "The Vagabond" is the direct antithesis of the foregoing and this film is a steady laugh from start to finish. Chaplin has put more of his versatile self into this picture than the general public knows he possesses.

The whole show is one of superb motion pictures.

ANNOUNCEMENT

To my friends and acquaintances in Portsmouth and vicinity, I wish to announce that I have recently become connected as representative of the Glencoe Woolen Company with offices at 23 Pleasant street, opposite the postoffice.

The company's mills are located at Sangerville, Maine. I have personally inspected the company's property, and saw the mills in full operation, running day and night, met the officers in Sangerville, acquainted myself with their policies and methods, and have also visited the Mystic Manufacturing Company's mills at Mystic, Connecticut, and there met Mr. Eli Gledhill, who controls the Mystic Manufacturing Company, and who is chairman of the Board of Directors of the Glencoe Woolen Company, and one of its heaviest stockholders.

I did not decide to make this important change until I had satisfied myself beyond any doubt of the stability of the Glencoe Woolen Company and its officers.

I find after thorough investigation, that Mr. Gledhill is one of the most successful and best known woolen and woolen manufacturers in this country. Mr. Gledhill will dictate the policies of the manufacturing and selling of the Glencoe Woolen Company's business. Therefore, I have no hesitancy in recommending the Glencoe securities which I shall help the treasurer, Mr. L. J. Coburn, sell. I have learned that the company has departed from the old method in placing their securities, in giving a large proportion to brokers and bankers, but instead the company is giving this direct to their bond purchasers. Consequently, these bonds are sold direct from the Glencoe Woolen Company to the investors, they getting what often goes to brokers.

In conclusion, I wish to say that it will be my pleasure to explain in detail the further merits of the Glencoe Woolen Company.

KINGSTONIAN NOT A VICTIM OF THE U-BOAT

Leyland Liner Proves to Have Been Far From Nantucket
When Raid Took Place.

Boston, Oct. 12.—The British steamer Kingstonian, reported as among those torpedoed by a German submarine off Nantucket last Sunday, is safe in port, according to word received today by John M. Thomas of this city, local manager of the Leyland line which owns the steamer. Mr. Thomas said his information showed that the Kingstonian was thousands of miles from Nantucket last Sunday.

As the Kingstonian is in the service of the British admiralty, Mr. Thomas was not permitted to indicate the port at which she had arrived, but he said that it would take her two weeks of steaming at her usual speed to reach Nantucket.

This information serves to confirm the opinion held by marine men here that the report that the Kingstonian's loss arose from a confusion of her name with that of the Chr. Knudsen, the Norwegian tank steamer sunk by the U. boat.

The first British steamer to leave this port since the appearance of the U-boat was reported, sailed today. She is the Coruana, a coal carrier, bound for Loughlin, C. B. A few hours later the Leyland liner Memphis with a big cargo, largely grain, sailed for Manchester, England.

The steamer Kansas which was held up by the German submarine early Sunday morning and was later allowed to proceed to this port where she took on horses for Genoa, Italy, is expected to sail tomorrow. The delay in her departure on account of the fear of the submarine off the coast, has been costly to her charterers, the Franco-Canada line, it is said, as the charter price is understood to be $2,200 a day or nearly $100 an hour. She is owned by the American-Italian company.

DANDRUFF GOES! HAIR GETS THICK, WAVY, BEAUTIFUL

Save your hair! Double its beauty in a few moments.
Try This!

Hair stops coming out and every particle of dandruff disappears.

Try as you will, after an application of Danderine, you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most, will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is immediate and amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance, the beauty and shimmer of true hair health.

Get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

KITTERY

The Noddy Dozen Five Hundred Club held its first meeting of the season on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. George D. Boulter on Love lane, and this occasion will long linger in the memories of the members present (which included all but one), for this ever-popular hostess had remembered that this was the tenth anniversary of the organization of this club, and carried out the evening's pastimes in the nature of a "tin celebration." As the guests sat down to play they were each presented with a souvenir spoon, and at the conclusion of the game special appropriate favors were awarded as follows: First, a stereo lamp, Miss May Rogers; second, aluminum tea ball, Mrs. Frances Rogers; third, tin mason jar, Mrs. Myrtle Kuse. An invitation to the dining room was then given and there a tempting lunch of welch rabbit, olives, crackers, assorted cake and coffee was served. The table was prettily decorated in red and green, cut flowers and place cards. One feature of this enjoyable evening was the history of the happenings of the club during its ten years of happy existence which was written and read by Mrs. Frances Rogers. The guests departed at a late hour, profuse in thanks to Mrs. Boulter for her idea of having this first gathering of the season such a unique and happy occasion.

Mrs. Everett Otis returned on Wednesday from a visit to relatives in Maiden, Mass.

Mr. Chester Boulter will move his family from Cottle's Hill to Manchester in about two weeks.

Mrs. Thurston Smart and Mrs. Harry Trafton of Portsmouth were visitors in town on Thursday.

Agnes has a fine line of working trousers. Very low in price, 10c, 15c, 20c. Miss Clifford Williams is very ill at her home on Echo street.

Mrs. George Newson of the Intervale is passing the day in Boston.

Miss Nellie Call of Love lane was the recent guest of friends in York.

Mrs. George Chamberlain of Boston is very ill at her summer home on Rogers road.

Several members of Kittery Grange attended the Pomona meeting at South Berwick, some taking the degree.

Mrs. Fred Marshall of York visited relatives in town on Thursday.

Mr. William Gailley of the Intervale, who is employed as a draftsman on the navy yard, has been transferred to Washington, D. C., and with his family will leave for that city about November 1.

Agnes has made arrangements for a fresh supply of Tab's Butter Crust bread every day. This bread is fresh, sweet and made in a clean bakery. Try a loaf.

Mr. Clifford Williams of Echo street is critically ill. Consultation of doctors was held yesterday.

Miss Hazel Wiggatt is the guest of her parents of Rogers road for a few days.

Mr. Leslie Corbin has gone to join his ship at Norfolk, Va.

George Smart was a visitor in Boston yesterday.

Mrs. Carol Blaney and little son were the guests of Mrs. Joseph Ploot of Stevens road yesterday.

Mr. James Cash of Love lane has recently purchased an automobile.

Mrs. Charles Woods, Miss Julia Dunbar and Mr. William H. Brown were visitors in Rochester and Milton recently, making the trip by auto. The Hobbins will give a harvest supper this evening in Wentworth hall from 5 to 7.30 o'clock.

Miss Annie Locke of Government street is the guest of Mrs. Joseph Hobbins of Allston, Mass., for a few days.

Miss Edith Remick of Remick's corner has returned home, after passing two weeks with her brother, Mr. Harry Remick of Lynn.

The Ladies' Circle of the Second Christian church, held an all-day session in the vestry yesterday.

There were a number from here who attended York Pomona held at Berwick yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Bennett of Echo street were recent visitors in Ellot and Portsmouth.

Regular meeting of Kittery Grange will be held this evening at Grange hall.

Mrs. Walter Ball of Otis Avenue is passing the week with her daughter in Lynn.

Crystal Chapter of the Epworth League of the Government Street M. E. church held a business meeting and social last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Maby of Love lane. There were twenty members present.

After the business session, all enjoyed the playing of games, etc. Refreshments consisting of candy, assorted cake and cookies and ice cream were served. All reported an excellent time.

The many friends of Mr. William Smith will be sorry to learn of his death which occurred this morning shortly after 6 o'clock at his home on Williams avenue after a short illness.

KITTERY COMMUNITY OPEN FORUM

The first meeting of the Open Forum season in Kittery will be held in Wentworth hall, Government street, on Sunday, Oct. 15, at 5 p. m. It is proposed to have monthly meetings, presenting to the public speakers of note who will discuss some of the great problems of the day. The subjects presented will be vital ones, combining both instruction and entertainment.

The first speaker will be Mr. W. T. Colyer, of England, a graduate of Oxford. He was for fourteen years on the staff of the English Local Government Board, he has had a wide experience as a lecturer, journalist, open air propagandist and organizer. His subject next Sunday afternoon will be "International Relations."

W. T. COLYER OF ENGLAND.

The public is invited to attend. There will be no admission fee, but inasmuch as there will be a certain expense attaching each meeting, a silver offering will be taken to defray such expense.

It is desired that it be understood that at the close of each address there will be given an opportunity to any and all who are in the audience to ask any question pertaining to the subject matter of the lecture, which may suggest itself. Such questions as a matter of fact are invited. Plan to attend these meetings; they are for you.

MEAT CAUSE OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

TAKE SALTS TO FLUSH KIDNEYS
IF BACK HURTS OR BLADDER BOTHERS

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken. Then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush out the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

PROBATE COURT ADJOURNED UNTIL TODAY AFTER A SHORT HEARING YESTERDAY MORNING.

The second day of the hearing before Judge of Probate Louis J. Hoyt at the County Court House on State street, in the case brought by relatives to break the will of the late Charles L. Austin of Boston and Rye Beach, say little was accomplished and court adjourned for further hearing until 9:30 this morning. Several witnesses were examined yesterday by the opposing attorneys and a number of others will testify before the case is finally settled.

Judge Ernest L. Gupitt of Portsmouth and Sherman L. Whipple of Boston appeared for the contestants, with Col. John H. Bartlett and John T. Mitchell representing the will.

TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

LOOK YOUNG! BRING BACK ITS NATURAL COLOR, GLOSS AND ATTRACTIVENESS

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though a troublesome, an easier way is to get a 50-cent bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old time recipe approved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell because it does it so naturally and evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite and is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

ANNUAL MOVIE BALL

Boston Arena, Wednesday Nov. 22

This time and place is destined to record the biggest indoor event in New England for the coming season, for it is the night set aside by the Motion Picture Exhibitors League of Massachusetts for their annual Movie Ball. This announcement will undoubtedly prove welcome news to thousands of loyal movie fans throughout New England, who will want to see their favorite player in the festivities arranged for the evening. While no definite program has yet been completed it is safe to assume that Chairman Samuel Grant, who has again been assigned to the arduous task of looking after the necessary arrangements, plans to offer a host of features that will not only parallel those of the past but are bound to form up as "the best" ever. The method of carrying on this work is so colossal that Mr. Grant has deemed it necessary to establish permanent headquarters at 127 Pleasant street, Boston, where queries and application for seats may be addressed. All tickets sent should be made payable to the "1916 Movie Ball Committee." The tickets are $1.00 apiece. An additional 50 cents is required when a reserved seat is desired. As in the past the committee will entertain a long list of notable movie stars who will participate in the grand march.

HEARD AT THE NATIONAL CAPITOL

(Special Correspondence)

"This act falls into the class of measures void because of the unworkmanlike way in which Congress used the tools provided by the Constitution. Congress did something in such a slovenly manner that (to be effective) it must be done over again."

Judge Charles M. Hough, of the Southern federal district of New York, used the above language in a decision declaring that the act to prevent trading in cotton futures, passed by the Democratic Congress, is unconstitutional, declared Representative Frank P. Woods, of Iowa, Chairman of the National Republican Congressional Committee, in a statement today.

"The quotation seems to me a fair characterization of the legislative record of this Administration. It is an indictment that could be brought against scores of laws that a Democratic Congress enacted and a Democratic President signed."

"No legislative body can produce accurate legislation without observing two important principles. First, there must be intelligent unity of purpose as to the laws to be written. Second, the methods by which the proposed legislation is to be enacted must insure the correction of defects when they are discovered."

"The Democratic administration has violated these principles repeatedly. Congress did something in such a slovenly manner that it must be done over again."

"Every error in a statute invites litigation, delay in enforcement of laws, congestion of court dockets, expense and annoyance to litigants, and an increase in the cost of government. Furthermore, the work must be done over again by succeeding Congresses."

"The blame for slovenly legislation enacted by the Democratic Congress falls even more heavily upon the Senate than upon the House. Both law and tradition have established the Senate as the more deliberative branch of Congress. Unhindered by special rules hindering debate and charged with a double responsibility, the failure of the Senate to correct legislative errors magnifies its guilt."

"The Democratic Senate must answer for another neglect of duty. The shabby conduct of our foreign relations, both in Mexico and elsewhere, lies as much at the door of the Democratic Senate as at the door of the Democratic President. Democratic Senators have acquiesced in the blunders of the Executive when if they had been less mindful of political expediency and patronage, and more sensitive to patriotic duty, they could have protected the National rights from invasion."

"Instead of a statesmanlike collaboration between the President and the Senate at a time when the policies of the Administration were jeopardizing the National security, it is a matter of regret that the principal contact between the Executive and the Senate was established and maintained through the President's 'kitchen cabinet.'"

"Lack of initiative in legislative endeavor in the Senate has been aggravated by lack of sufficient courage to prevent the President from rushing into office men so unfit for public service that their nominations should have been rejected."

"The Republican party stands for stability and a National viewpoint. It stands for legislative and administrative efficiency. It stands for a foreign policy that looks ahead, not backward; which anticipates possible disaster by superior diplomacy and is not therefore forced to temporize. In a crisis, its criterion of government is justified by an unblemished record of more than half a century."

"The public gives encouraging evidence that it realizes the importance of such a standard and of electing a Republican Senate and a House that will maintain it."

MOTTOES FOR LEADING MEN TO BATTLE

London, Oct. 1.—Major Sir Francis Vane who was a prominent military figure during the recent Irish rebellion has drawn up some mottoes for the benefit of the new British army of subalterns. Here they are:

1. The military art is based on the human soul. The commander who knows what his men can do, and especially what they cannot do, has learnt most of strategy and tactics.
2. A commander is not only a criticiser, he must be also an appraiser. If he does not praise his men as much as he blames them, he is no good.
3. A commander who gives the fewest orders and gets what he wants, is the best officer because it shows that he knows his men, and that his men know him.
4. The most certain way for a commander to make a soldier a villain is to commence by suspecting him of being so.
5. A commander should never eat until he has seen that his men are fed. If he does he will be left in a tight corner by them.
6. It is cowardly in a commander to swear at his men—because they cannot swear back. Besides he will want all his swear words for really great occasions.
7. On service it is better for a commander to sit on his dignity than to stand on it. He has his power under military law, and he should not "swank" of it.
8. Efficient command depends on quick decision. It is better even to act quickly and err, than to hesitate until the time of action is passed.
9. Take every necessary risk for your men's sake; take no unnecessary one.
10. Never worry or fluster your men. They are just like yourself, and cannot do their best if flustered.
11. Try to win—work for winning—but be prepared for what you will do if defeated.
12. If you find that your men are faced in the right direction, do not change it, the best commander likes a coxswain, makes his goal, but does not not pull the tiller if the boat is holding right. We have all of us different ways of getting there.
13. To get into the place in which you are wanted in the quickest and the quietest manner, is the reason of all drill, and its sole excuse.
14. Discipline is a very much misunderstood word. True discipline means unity of action, through the influence and mutual confidence. Bad discipline means temporary unity through fear.
15. Loyalty is equally misunderstood. To be effective it must be reciprocal. A commander inspires loyalty if he shows it towards his men. If he does not he should not expect it.

"VERY GOOD EDDIE"
Going Along Merrily and Musically on Its 3rd Month at the Wilbur Theatre, Boston.

Last Saturday night completed the eighth week of that fascinating musical comedy, "Very Good Eddie" at the Wilbur Theatre, and the eighth week has been but a repetition of the other seven as far as business is concerned, which is but another way of saying that standing room only has been the rule after 8 o'clock each night.

There is a subtle charm about "Very Good Eddie." Other musical comedies have good music, pretty girls and funny comedians; but there is something else about this Comstock-Murphy production not easy to define, but very easy to feel. Light and frothy it may be, but that would not account for eight big weeks, starting in the heat of midsummer, and keeping up such a big average business for three months.

The music of the show plays no small part in its success, music of the popular order but not cheap; music as carefully notated as that of grand opera and with legitimate harmonies and cadences. Ragtime is almost wholly ignored.

And the comedy is as legitimate as the music. Ernest Trues' methods are those of the trained farcure rather than the antics of a clown, and his companions in merriment, Alice Dovey, Anna Orr, Florence Earl, Oscar Shaw, Denman Moley and the others enter into the true spirit of the comedy. And so there is little to wonder at in its lengthened stay at the Wilbur. The 12th week begins next Monday, Oct. 16th.

DOUBT EXISTANCE OF S. S. KINGSTON REPORTED TORPEDOED

REAR ADMIRAL GLEAVES REPORTS BELIEF THAT NO SUCH VESSEL WAS VICTIM OF THE U-53.

Washington, Oct. 12.—Rear Admiral Gleaves, commanding the Atlantic destroyer flotilla, reported today his personal belief that no steamer Kingston or Kingstonian was sunk by the German submarine during its operations off Nantucket lightship. After several days of search the destroyer force has found no evidence that a ship of that name was in the vicinity, and, if Admiral Gleaves' theory is correct, only five ships were sunk. Admiral Gleaves report follows:

"Destroyers continued the search until midnight Tuesday from Montank Point to the Nantucket lightship. It is my personal belief that all survivors have been accounted for, and that there was no steamer Kingston or Kingstonian, the name Knudsen having been understood to be Kingston. Destroyers have returned and search discontinued."

The captain of one of the sunken ships said he had hailed a passing vessel, which was later destroyed, and understood her name to have been given as Kingston. The Knudsen was destroyed by the submarine in the same vicinity.

CABLE LETTER

London, October 12.—War as conducted today is mostly invisible. Looking at a fortified position from a slight distance, it is hard to realize the difficulty of taking it. So writes an artillery officer in a letter home from the British front in France. He says:

"Nights, are I think the most wonderful part of the 24 hours in our battery position. Standing up above one's gun and looking around, the whole country appears to be spitting fire. There are guns everywhere. And over the front line a tremendous firework display goes on the whole night through."

"Rockets and colored flags are forever going up silhouetting against the skyline the remains of bars, stricken trees and here and there small groups of tiny black figures—working parties and reliefs going up—in this direction a ruined village, or over there, faint and ghastly, what was once a wood or copse."

"The occasional croaking of a machine gun can be heard penetrating the continual boom of the guns in the distance, while overhead, shells of all descriptions shriek and swirl unceasingly."

"The other day I was able to witness an attack from our O. P. and for the first time saw the enemy's country. The position was a strong one and I must own to being surprised, almost to a state of disappointment when the Hun lines were pointed out to me."

"I had a good view and was comparatively close to them but the scene appeared to be so very ordinary. One man stood upturned earth and debris. Everywhere one goes is debris and ruin. It is nauseating at times depressing. The nearer you get to the front line the more this is noticeable. The ground there is the most frequently bombarded."

"Men have too much to do to keep today such places; they can wait until the line is pushed further forward. There is debris everywhere. In places it is one tangled mass of telephone wire or barbed wire; empty tins of every description and refuse, all swarming with insects, beetles, flies. They make the air thick, buzzing and hissing angrily as one disturbs them in passing."

"The place is unhealthy. It doesn't do to stay and ponder. One knows what the earth contains."

"To come back to the attack I witnessed. It was well nigh impossible in the first place to make out distinctly which were our trenches and which

STEAMER STEPHANO AND RESCUED PASSENGERS AT NEWPORT NAVAL HOSPITAL

Some eighty passengers were rescued hospital. The Stephano was a small vessel of 2,143 tons. Those at the bound from St. John's to New York, Sunday evening before she was torpedoed off the Nantucket lightship, which is forty-six miles from the nearest American territory, the island of Nantucket, by the German submarine U-53. They were taken to Newport by the United States destroyer Ericsson, where they were cared for at the naval the Huns. Being a novice, it all appeared the same to me—one huge mass of disturbed earth with holes everywhere.

"It seemed impossible to believe that the position was a strong one and wanted some taking. While I was watching I became aware that an attack was about to be launched. Through my glasses I could see the groups of figures forming up behind a small rise in the ground in the near distance. Everywhere small black figures now were appearing."

"Suddenly as if one, the whole of the guns on the British front appeared to let loose their wrath. The air was literally full of shells, shrieking and tearing overhead. Thicker and thicker they came. The black figures moved slowly forward."

"I then, for the first time made out the Hun lines. This earth works in front which before showed no signs of life were now alive with little blue caps. At one point a machine gun could be clearly seen. It was manned by brave men and was doing steady work."

"The figures still massed forward. Men were falling here and there, but the black figures still went on until lost in the smoke and dust in which the Hun line was now covered. The air was reeking with the smell of the gunpowder. I could watch for only a few minutes longer. The atmosphere was becoming thicker and thicker and the whole sight was lost from view in thick smoke and dust."

"It was all so fascinating to watch that one remained as if mesmerized, looking over the parapet with glasses glued on that point of smoke in front of one, knowing that it was getting thicker and thicker, but anxious if only for a fraction of a second for it to break so as to see what was going on. My telephone from below called me. The wires had been cut. It was then that I realized that the Hun had been retreating, and that looking over the front of a trench wasn't the wisest thing to be doing."

PERSHING'S MEN HAVE FUN WITH THE MOVIES

Headquarters, American Punitive Expedition, Mexico, (via aeroplane to Columbus, N. M., Oct. 12).—The smart young man who first called the "movies" the "silent drama" called a worthy phrase, but he never heard our movies at Colonia Dublan.

The moving pictures shown at expedition headquarters are run off to an accompaniment of conversation and comment that would shame a chatty problem play.

The comment is more or less pointed, too. Seven months away from civilization gives one rather a keen perspective. Our heroes down here have to do something that we have open-throated shirts and put restorer on their hair. Our heroes have to have more than a cut and a simple little frock."

Otherwise, the audience is quite likely to cheer loudly for the villain and the vampire—the vampire especially.

The "movies" are shown out of doors under these limitless Mexican skies. They are thrown against a specially prepared screen that resembles nothing so much as a billboard. The audience brings its own seats—oil cans, boxes and the like serving very well. It is a dull night when there are less than a thousand officers and men seated in front of the screen.

The program always starts with a laugh. The operator throws on the screen the following legend:

"Ladies will please remove their hats!"

Then the audience is at attention. For the last night or two we have had some sad, sobbing films. Last night a wasted woman died through the first five hundred feet of film. Our sympathy didn't last more than one hundred feet.

"Give her some iodine, medical!" cried a cavalryman.

The hospital corps officers in the first row frowned. Iodine, according to army tradition, is the great cure-all of the hospital corps.

There came the conventional scene in which the heroine is sent from her home into the cold, cruel world by a heartless parent. An stern father slammed the door, an artilleryman yelled:

"Hey, old man, give her the regular three-days' rations!"

"Professional criticism became harsh when a weary prospector, leading a patient burro, finally found a spring and drank. He neglected to give the burro a drink. Once more the cavalry burst forth."

"Take care of your best friend, Jack!" called a man with a yellow hat. "Give Sue a drink, too!"

One trooper was very much impressed with the cleverness of a forger, depicted in the first reel in his prison uniform, who plotted as he signed false names.

"He sure is one smart hombre," said he.

"Yeh, he's smart all right," drily responded a negro infantryman. "You can tell that by the convict fatigue uniform he had on in the last scene!"

Sometimes the talk gets very peppy indeed. But perhaps the choice comment of all came during the problem play. The heroine, of doubtful past, had for some reason failed to impress the hero. He rejected all her advances. Then one day she learns that he is married. She used all the stock methods and a few others to register shock, woe, broken heart, grief and sorrow. She took deep, convulsive breaths; she bit her lips; she clutched at her throat; she tore her hair; she passed her hand over her eyes as if in great pain; she seemed about to faint and finally staggered off the scene.

"My, my," said a negro trooper just in front of us, "she seems dissatisfied, don't she?"

THREE MEN CROSS TWO BULGAR LINES

A daring exploit by a British officer and two privates is related by S. C. Walker, now serving in Salonika, in a letter to his mother. He says:

"An officer and two privates of our regiment did a rather plucky thing early in the week. They went up to the Bulgarian first line in broad daylight and crept through the barbed wire. Not seeing a soul about they went on to the second line. Strange to say this was deserted too, so on they went to the third line."

Here all of the three stood on the parapet. They could see nobody but they heard whistling, which grew louder. Suddenly a Bulgarian snatched round the corner of a traverse. Of course he stopped when he saw our men, then whipped back like a flash of lightning."

"Our fellows did not wait for more as the man's shouting had raised the alarm. The Bulgarians were firing at them from thirteen yard range, but only hit one man in the leg. This man ran for two miles with the bullet in his leg."

HIGH SCHOOL HONORS VETERAN JANITOR

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 11.—Shortridge high school of this city, each year renders tribute to the memory of some man or woman who has helped in the upbuilding of the institution.

This year alumni, after discussing the names of several men who had risen to places of high esteem in the world, chose to honor James Eddy, for 26 years a janitor of the institution. A tablet recounting his faithful labor and telling of the cheer he imparted to "his boys and girls" during a quarter of a century, has been placed in a conspicuous place in the halls.

The Herald news columns contain some very interesting items today outside of the local happenings.

ORWIN GRIFFIN HEADS ASSOCIATION OF SCHOOL TEACHERS

ELECTED PRESIDENT OF PORTSMOUTH TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION AT ANNUAL MEETING YESTERDAY

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Portsmouth Teachers' Association was held at the Portsmouth High School on Wednesday afternoon, with practically the full membership present. The meeting was presided over by Mr. E. Allen Malnes of the high school staff, the retiring president of the association.

The reports of the secretary-treasurer show the association to be in a good financial position to carry out the program for the coming year and it is probable that this will be more elaborate than that of last season. The program last year included a number of interesting lectures and musical evenings in addition to the many social teas and afternoon gatherings.

At the election of officers Mr. Orwin B. Griffin of the high school, succeeded Mr. Malnes for the ensuing year. The other officers elected were:

Vice President, Chester Howe, principal of the Whipple school.

Secretary-treasurer, Miss Mildred P. Roberts, high school.

Executive committee, Miss Jesse K. Woods, Miss S. Avis Varrell, Miss E. Madeline Toner, and Miss J. Agnes Connors.

CAMP MIGHTY DULL WITHOUT SCOUT TALES

Field Headquarters, American Punitive Expedition in Mexico (via aeroplane to Columbus, N. M.)—Sept. 29.—There are not so many scouts now as there were in the first days of the punitive expedition.

One by one, with many a scoutlike whoop and much business of twirling six-shooters on the fingers, the greater number of them have departed in a cloud of dust and a great clattering of hoofs.

That they were allowed to depart may be the commanders of this expedition open to some criticism. It is difficult to entertain an army in camp and those earlier scouts were entertaining. Those that are left devote a awful lot of time to scouting and very little to conversation.

For instance, Jack Boyd, scout chief, was in this tent but a few minutes ago and an effort was made to draw him out on his experience with the ride.

"Shucks!" said Jack Boyd, glancing in embarrassment at the gold watch on his wrist. "I'm not a good shot. It just happens when we're out for game I'm lucky."

What can one do with a scout like that? Now the earlier scouts were just the other way round. Take the chap they called Mail Order. The name was given him by the soldiers, who seemed to feel that his wide-brimmed hat, vivid neckerchief, embossed holsters and other "props" had been acquired by the system, invested in Chicago.

Mail Order had been detailing a kidnapping in which he had played the spotlight a good deal. There had been considerable swift and accurate shooting. It seems, and Mail Order had come out of the blue smoke with two hot revolvers and three dead men on his conscience.

"In course, I had to shoot," said Mail Order, "cause these here hombres were fixin' to wipe me out. But I don't care none for killin' men. Every time I kill a man it gives me the shivers." Nearly all those early scouts seemed to be personally acquainted with Pancho Villa and referred to him almost exclusively by first name. One of these sighed heartily upon hearing an official report of the expedition's engagement with a band of outlaws.

"That ain't really no fun," he yawned. "When I was with Pancho some of them greasers tried to run off my cattle over to Sonora. I gets up and, while my breakfast coffee is a-cookin' I goes out and kills fourteen of 'em."

Another claimed to be dressed entirely in trophies and relics. He was forever glancing at an enormous silver watch.

"See that watch?" he would then ask. "Look that often Sierra the Sutch after I killed him."

Then he would call attention to his boots, claiming that they were the remnants of another bloody encounter. His pistol was highly prized, inasmuch as he declared it was a gift from Pancho Villa on the occasion of the scout's assassination of eight personal enemies of Villa.

Thus ran the stories of the scouts who have departed. Their tales are sadly puffed in camp. Reviewing some of them the writer questioned Jack Boyd closely.

"You must have a remarkable shooting story somewhere about you," he was urged.

"Yes," said Jack. "I have. Day before yesterday Lieutenant Patton and I were out shooting and we ran into a herd of seventy-five antelope. We got one apiece."

Jack Boyd is a very discouraging sort of scout.

MEMORIAL TO BOY HERO PROPOSED IN ENGLAND

London, Oct. 12.—Lord Newson is one of the leading advocates of the national memorial to be raised to the heroic 16-year-old boy, Jack Cornwell, who died, covered with glory for his simple devotion to duty in the great naval battle off Jutland.

He said today there are three different methods by which the lad's memory can be kept green.

First, there is the proposed endowment of Cottage Homes in his native Essex in a district of London and the provision of naval scholarships in connection therewith. Secondly, there is the scheme of the Navy League to have the boys and girls of the British Empire subscribe together to found a ward at the new Star and Garter Home at Richmond. Thirdly, Sir Robert Baden-Powell has issued an appeal to Boy Scouts to found a Jack Cornwell Scholarship available for Boy Scouts only, as the deceased hero was one of their number.

HAMPDEN R. R. ISSUE RAISED AT B. & M. ANNUAL MEETING

Boston, Oct. 12.—At the annual meeting of the Boston & Maine stockholders yesterday, Conrad W. Crocker, counsel for the Minority Stockholders' Protective Association, undertook to identify the promoters of the reorganization plan with Hampden railroad interests, but offered to withdrawn all opposition to reorganization if the chamber of commerce, after investigation, finds the Hampden of some value to the B. & M., and that it ought to be taken over.

He quoted Judge Knowlton and Edmund D. Codman, former president of the Fitchburg, in opposition to the Hampden lease, and producing alleged certified copies of grand jury indictments obtained more than two years ago, he said, by Dist. Atty. Corcoran of Middlesex against certain Boston brokers, naming two alleged to be actively engaged now in the reorganization plan, with William H. Coolidge and others, asked why the two indicted have not demanded a trial, if innocent.

Coolidge Replies
Mr. Coolidge replied that it is very easy to indict men, as the New Haven directors had been indicted; but to show them guilty after trial was something else. He argued in favor of keeping obligations, whether to leased lines or otherwise, and, perhaps, in compromise rather than in repudiation.

He cited the appeal of the Boston & Maine's former president, Mr. Mellen, to the Boston bankers, and his promise of a lease of the Hampden and the acceptance of that lease in 1911 by both directors and stockholders.

Mr. Crocker retorted that Mellen's control has been held unlawful, that the directors' action was also unlawful and "the stockholders' was just the steamroller working."

Woman Asks Question

Miss C. A. Benson of Cambridge, a lawyer and trustee of the Edward Everett estate, told how the estate contained 12 shares of Boston & Maine common stock, bought at a high price and asked if this stock would be a dead loss.

"Will Judge Knowlton," she said, "tell us why he is now going with the crowd? There are times in life when God and one man make the majority." Mr. Hustis replied to assure her that he and the other directors had as much interest in small holdings as in large and were working for the good of all.

The stock vote was then announced. Mr. Crocker entering formal protest against the voting of the trustees' shares.

George A. Mansfield of Waltham, Mr. Crocker's candidate, for a place on the directorate, received 137 votes. There were represented at the meeting 302,686 out of a total of 426,640 shares, and the present directorate was declared re-elected, receiving more than 302,000 votes and some of the entire vote represented, as follows: President Hustis of Winchester; Norman L. Bassett of Augusta, Me.; Charles W. Bosworth of Springfield, Frank P. Carpenter of Manchester, N. H.; Samuel Carr of Boston, Charles Sumner Cook of Portland, Me.; Henry B. Day of Newton, James L. Doherty of Springfield, Fred C. Dunne of Concord, Charles L. Hall of Newton, Marcus P. Knowlton of Springfield, James M. Prud'homme of Boston, George H. Prouty of Newbury, Vt., and James Duncan Upham of Claremont, N. H.

At the meeting of the directors of the Boston & Maine, held later, the following officers were re-elected: James H. Hustis, president; Arthur B. Nichols, clerk of the corporation; Herbert B. Wheeler, treasurer.

THREE-HUNDRED MILLION WAGE RAISE SINCE WAR

New York, Oct. 11.—A wage survey summary, issued by national labor organizations, estimated that since the war began a wage increase averaging 12 per cent had taken place, giving approximately 5,700,000 workers an annual addition to their incomes of $300,000,000.

The figures were compiled from a labor census taken by Secretary of Labor Wilson. The census was based on reports from 153 publications, mostly trade and labor journals, among which were 15 dailies, 20 monthly and semi-monthly journals and 100 weeklies.

More than 150 wage increases were listed for New York. In the clothing trades 50 cents to $2.50 a week was added to the pay envelopes of 40,000 workers, the report asserts. Three building trades experienced raises affecting 25,000 men. One common labor settlement in the state placed 10,000 men on a basis of $2 to $2.75 a day. There were seven wage jumps for street railway operators and 15 for printers.

One hundred and thirty wage increases were reported for New Jersey most of them affecting thousands of men. They included bakeries, building trades, clothing, foundry and machine shops, millinery plants, publishing houses, railroads, iron and steel mines and textile mills.

SOME THINGS COLUMBUS MISSED

Four-hundred and Twenty-four years ago this morning Christopher Columbus landed on the shores of San Salvador, and discovered this country, although he didn't know it for some time. Even at that, when he made a bad guess at first, supposing that he was finding a shorter way from the west coast of Europe to India, Columbus did something. He was disappointed in his big object, but he proved to the world that Europe was not the whole cheese, and probably had it not been for his certain conviction that the world was round we might not have been here today.

But there were many things that Christopher Columbus, the discoverer of America, missed on that trip more than four centuries ago. Had he made the trip last month it wouldn't have taken him so long, and it is doubtful if he would "have landed," with the U-53 looking for neutrals, especially as he was flying the Spanish flag and only a few days ago the Spanish government issued an edict that no submarines would be received in Spanish ports.

The things that Columbus missed are many and varied. He missed the comforts of a steam-heater apartment; missed fighting with the janitor; missed the short skirts and high shoes, which are both racing to see which can reach the waste first—with the skirt a little in the lead at present.

Columbus never enjoyed reading any rhetorical outbursts of diplomatic fervor written by our noted L. D. in the White House. He never heard of watchful waiting, for he had no idea of that. He never heard of the horror of passing through Middle Street after a rain to add to his other great difficulties. He never heard of $10.00 being asked for a barrel of flour in Genoa or Lisbon. He didn't have to observe traffic regulations, dodge automobiles, pose for the movies, pay six cents for a five-cent trolley ride, or ride in a trolley.

He didn't have to stand in line for seventeen hours to purchase a ticket for a world series baseball game, and then get stung by a speculator. He did not have to read sign board advertising while attempting to see the scenery from the car windows of the B. & M. No book agents bothered Christopher Columbus, nor did insurance agents, pester him in his waking hours. He never heard of a sufragette or an anti.

If he didn't like his mother-in-law all he had to do was go to his queen and say, "Hello, I think that there is something doing over in China and if you will hook your jewels for me I will make the trip, all expenses paid, and cop some land for you," and the wife's Ma was out of luck and had to stay home. He didn't have to eat and sawdust from a pasteboard package for his breakfast. He didn't have to worry about 10c milk or no milk at all while the farmers and dealers were scrapping over the price. Yes, there are a number of things that Columbus missed.

He never had to mark up an Australian ballot in an election and then worry for a week trying to recall if he had voted the ticket as he had promised his third assistant stranger-in-law. He didn't have to read of his country men, with their wives and children, slaughtered by Mexican bandits. He never tried to figure out how MUCH HE OWED THE INCOME TAX MAN.

He never saw a stylish young woman in the middle of winter carrying a muff, wearing furs around her neck, and having on silk hose and gauze sleeves. Sure, Columbus missed a lot of things.

SIR HERBERT TREE LAUDS AMERICAN GAIETY

London, Sept. 27.—Sir Herbert Tree, the famous English actor writes in an English newspaper his impressions of America on his recent trip. He admires American gaiety especially.

"The face, or shall I say the surface of America has entirely changed since I first made its acquaintance 20 years ago. New York largely dominates the current of the nation's life, colors, the atmosphere, and dictates the atmosphere and dictates its fashions.

The two striking impressions one receives on arriving in New York city are its architecture and its luxury. Geographical necessity was the mother of the skyscraper. By day these giant towers convey an impression of galish splendor; at night they are imposing.

"As there is no twilight in the city so are there no half tones in the life of the people. The dust of Broadway is chased by the blazing electric signs which dazzle the stranger as a transformation scene of some advertising fairground. But it has a beauty of its own.

"The gaiety of New York at night is most striking. Dancng proceeds in all the restaurant and hotels. But the gaiety is normal and indigenous; it seems to be the natural outcome of the restless energy of the climate and the people.

"Let me not assert that there is no national American music. This new art of sound is to the newcomer, more nerve-shattering and bewildering than that of Strauss or of the music futurists. After the first shock of rag-time it becomes haunting in its fascination. It is as though you were drawn into the depths of chaos by a maelstrom of sound.

"Yet in this riot of sound and movement there is always something respectable. It has the Latin exuberance of high spirits rather than the Saxon rowdiness of the flesh.

"The hospitality towards English visitors is prodigal. Whereas in former times there was a tendency to depreciate the English people, their manners, their customs, and their want of humor, one is struck today by the sympathetic courtesy and the better understanding with which our selves and our work are regarded.

"Shortly after my arrival in America I started for California in order to fulfill a contract to present Macbeth in a series of moving pictures.

"At Los Angeles, the mayor welcomes me, I undergo the inevitable mental vivisection at the hands of the representative of the press, and am asked to a banquet given by the Los Angeles Examiner, to which the leading citizens were invited.

"The interviewing which is more a cross-examination than an examination-in-chief, being over in an hour and a half, my next objective is the Pine Art Studio, situated at Hollywood, a suburb about seven miles out.

"My first step is to hire a motor car. Life at Los Angeles would be impossible without these perambulators. Everybody in the city seems to be possessed of a car—there are 200,000 of them in California.

"At the studio as our car stops we are surrounded by a motley crowd, all painted and costumed, among them are red Indians, cavaliers, medians, gorgeous Babylonians and cow-boys who fire their pistols in the air. This is a welcome.

"Recovering from the shock and finding myself happily unwounded, I raise my hat to the cheering crowd. My instinct tells me that I am in the midst of a Democratic society.

"A fair haired little boy of five years old approached. He is, I afterwards discovered one of the most popular film actors. The infant phenomenon wore a long garment, on which was sewn in large letters the word "Welcome," and coming towards me with extended hand at once put me at ease by saying:

"Pleased to meet you Sir Tree."

"By way of making conversation I ventured:

"And how has the world been using you these last few years?"

"I believe the art of the moving picture has not found its feet. It has hitherto been largely imitative of the theatre. It is likely that a natural cleavage between the spoken and pictorial drama will take place.

"In England we have no conception of the vast influence of the moving picture industry in America where it has become part of the national life of the people. There is at home a tendency to sneer at the serious work which is undertaken by such striving artists as Mr. Griffiths—witness which the brilliant ridicule by which the film of Macbeth was anticipated. I refer of course, to Sir James Barrie's recent remarkable contribution to Shakespeare's Tercentenary.

"It is the inevitable fate of any new movement to be ignored until it has taken root among the great necessities. Steam, electricity, telegraphy, wireless telegraphy, the motor car and the airship were all scoffed at until they became part of the daily life of the people."

DENTAL PREPAREDNESS

(From United States Public Health Service.)

What is the most important attribute of a soldier?

Good feet?

No.

Good eyesight?

No.

Good brains?

No.

What then?

Good teeth.

A soldier may have good feet, good eyesight, and good brains but if he has bad teeth, he can't eat. If he can't eat he can't march—enough to the enemy to see him and use his brains to fight him.

How does a soldier get good teeth?

By having good teeth in childhood.

How do children keep good teeth?

Through being taught by their mother how to keep their teeth clean and having their teeth looked after while they are growing. This makes good teeth for future soldiers.

It would seem then as though the first patriotic duty of a mother was to keep her children's teeth in good condition.

It is.

LOCAL MAN VISITS GLENCOE WOOLEN MILL AND IS WELL PLEASED

Harry I. Caswell of this city has returned from Sangerville, Me., where he accompanied L. J. Coburn, the local representative of the Glencoe Woollen Mill. While at Sangerville Mr. Caswell made an inspection of the mills and met the officers of this bustling corporation, also E. R. (Edith), chairman of the board of directors of the Glencoe Company, who is also the treasurer and general manager of the Mystic Manufacturing Company at Mystic, Conn. Mr. Caswell in conversation with a Chronicle reporter said he was thoroughly satisfied that the Glencoe Company was a prosperous concern and one that persons would realize well from their investment as the management was in live hands.

NEW HAMPSHIRE COLLEGE NOTES

New Hampshire College, Durham, N. H., Oct. 11.—With a tremendous war waging in Europe, with an equally violent peace in Mexico, with Japan on our West anxious to expand, with Germany by no means friendly and with England prepared to wage commercial warfare against us, it is high time for this country to prepare," said H. L. Boutwell, alumni trustee in addressing the students at Convocation early this afternoon. Mr. Boutwell declared that the time had come to talk patriotism and that we must consider seriously the problem of military preparedness. He said there would be no peace in Mexico until the Mexicans were educated, and that at present in that country not more than 1-1 of the population could be considered educated by any standard. He pointed out that preparation meant a great undertaking and that in these days of airships, submarines and tanks, David with his sling would have no chance with the Goliath of today.

Professor J. A. Tufts another member of the board of trustees also spoke and told of the work being done in Pittsburg laboratories by scientists who have been graduated from New Hampshire College. He went on to point out that the reputation of a college rests very largely with the undergraduates and said that no student need expect to get the best that an institution has to give him unless the student gives to the institution effort, conduct and loyalty.

In balloting by the students immediately after convocation exercises this afternoon, Hughes carried New Hampshire College over Wilson by a vote of 222 to 208. Women voted.

The opportunity to vote was announced at convocation and as the students left the gymnasium they found themselves confronted by two ballot boxes. One was for men voters and the other for women. The vote of the men when counted was Hughes 172 Wilson 154; the women however, went for Wilson, the vote being Wilson 50, Hughes 48. The ballot was taken by the New Hampshire, the weekly undergraduate newspaper.

Several hundred men and women interested in poultry culture gathered here yesterday and spent the entire day, the occasion being the fifth Annual Poultry Day. The program made out by Prof. R. V. Mitchell, head of the New Hampshire College poultry department was an interesting and comprehensive one, though the films for motion pictures showing the chicken still within the egg did not arrive in time for use.

After the last lecture in the afternoon Professor Mitchell took all the visitors on a tour of the college poultry yards and laboratory. The program was separated into a morning and an afternoon session and was opened by a talk by Professor Mitchell on Poultry Feeding. He was followed by W. P. Kirkpatrick of the Connecticut Agricultural College who gave an illustrated lecture on Egg Laying Contests. J. C. Graham of the Massachusetts Agricultural College then discussed the Caring for Breeding Stock. This ended the lectures for the morning and following Mr. Graham's talk the New Hampshire Poultry Growers Association held its annual meeting and the visitors were welcomed by President Patchchild of the college.

After luncheon Mr. Kirkpatrick spoke on Incubation and Breeding and Mr. Graham on the Value of Poultry Experimental Work. Professor Mitchell concluded the program with an illustrated lecture on Poultry Conditions in New Hampshire.

U. S. EXPECTS EARLY REPLY FROM ALLIES

ALL FIGHTING NATIONS HAVE BEEN WARNED AGAINST SINKING U. S. SUBMARINES

Washington, Oct. 11.—The United States is expecting an early reply from Great Britain, Russia, France and Japan, who have been told they must accept the responsibility if one of their warships sink a United States submarine by mistake. The activities of the German U-53 have transformed what might have been merely an academic question into a serious international issue.

NEW YORK LETTER.

"PITILESS PUBLICITY" — The "pitiless publicity" promised by Woodrow Wilson, candidate for the Presidency, has, almost from the beginning of his administration, amounted to nothing more or less than culpable suppression. Only now, two years after the events, has it become public that Huerta appealed to President Wilson to submit the question of arbitrating the flag of the United States to arbitration under the terms of the Hague Convention and that Mr. Wilson refused to arbitrate; and that Huerta actually offered to salute the flag provided the United States would return the salute and that again Mr. Wilson refused, preferring to seize Vera Cruz. Only recently have President Wilson's instructions to John Lind that Huerta must be driven from Mexico and that that was the sole purpose of the administration, become public. The policy of suppression is still being pursued. No one can find out whether John Lind is still being paid a salary from the Secret Fund of the State Department. Only recently has Secretary Redfield suppressed facts regarding the manufacture of dye-stuffs, which facts were of vital importance to American manufacturers. Until exposed, Secretary Daniels tried persistently to suppress the facts regarding his abandonment of Americans in danger at Tampico. Again, until exposed, Daniels willfully suppressed the report of the Navy General Board on the navy's lack of preparedness. There are rumors afloat regarding defective shells made by an inexperienced concern in Daniels' home town, and Daniels suppresses the facts. There are rumors of a secret report showing the inefficiency of the submarine batteries made by Daniels' friend, Edison, but Daniels suppresses the facts. And Secretary Baker, not to be outdone, persistently suppresses the report made to him by Dr. Darlington on the conditions of the militia on the border, although there are thousands of wives and mothers and children vitally interested in the contents of that report.

CAPTIVES TRY TO LEAVE GER- MANY BY HUNDREDS.

Berlin, Oct. 12.—The number of Russian war prisoners who try to escape to neutral countries in the hope of reaching their fatherland increases steadily, but very few of the fugitives manage to get out of the German empire. Most of them are caught before they reach the frontier.

When captured they all give the same explanation for their attempted flight—they are homesick and want to see their families again.

The runaways are mostly men who have been placed on farms almost unguarded. They have worked all summer and saved the wages paid to them. With their savings they expect to be able to get to Russia somehow.

Many try to reach Switzerland, although they do not know how they are to reach their homes from there. Somebody has told them that they would be free as soon as they are on Swiss soil, and that their consuls would procure transportation for them. Their astonishment is always great when they are taken into custody and interned by the Swiss authorities.

In the last two weeks about four hundred Russians tried to cross Lake Constance and eighty succeeded. The others were captured and returned to their camps where they will be kept under close surveillance in the future.

Squawk!

IN place of a real WARNING signal many cars nowadays come equipped with feeble "SQUAWKERS." They are about as ineffective in GETTING THEMSELVES HEARD as old-fashioned bulb horns used to be. You know—you who have these squawkers on your cars. You know how they act in crowded streets, in noisy traffic. You know how much of the road they get in the country.

Take a ride with a man who has a KLAXON. Notice the difference. See how you get the right of way—how the Klaxon CARRIES, how it gives walkers ahead (and they are good souls after all) plenty of time to get out of the way without jumping—but how they always DO get out of the way!

See how it GETS ITSELF HEARD in the country—half a mile ahead of your coming. You don't have to slow down, shift gears, waste gas and WAIT for the wagon or car ahead to turn out. They have already TURNED OUT when you get there!

And feel the SAFETY of it. Around sharp turns, over steep hills you KNOW the Klaxon has been heard—and that your share of the road is ready and waiting for you.

Then—think it over. What is four or six or twelve or even twenty dollars against the discomfort, the slow-downs, the gas-waste, the anxiety, the actual DANGER of a feeble, ineffective signal!

Get a KLAXON—and RIDE IN PEACE!

You can always TELL a Klaxon by its unfailing WARNING POWER and by this name-plate:—

CLAIMS INTERFERENCE CAUSES LABOR TROUBLES

Before a number of members of the Portsmouth Board of Trade on Wednesday evening James O. Fagan of Waverley, Mass., Special Representative of the National Industrial Conservation Movement, author and sign-man, delivered an address on "The Human Side of Industry." The Conservation of Industry gathering was held at Springfield, Mass., under the auspices of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts on Sept. 23 last. Mr. Fagan considers that the human side of the question is the most important feature to be considered in modern industry and his talk before the Portsmouth businessmen was similar to his address to the Derry Board of Trade a short time ago. He was introduced by Frederick M. Sise, president of the local board.

"Partners in Industry" were the opening words of his address here last evening. Picturing industrial relations as "a great, big human problem," and punctuating his words with efforts which well illustrate his points, he told of the false impression of existing relations between employer and employee as contained in newspapers, cartoons and motion pictures, and as told from the pulpit. He blamed these conditions for harming the cause of the wage-earner and said in part:

"Industry needs protection against this kind of spirit and against this kind of work and the wage earner in loyalty to his job and himself should insist upon a better understanding. He should ask public opinion for a fairer attitude of mind toward the business interests of the country, toward a situation in which every year more than 50 per cent of its enterprises go to the bad and less than 10 per cent to the good, and towards the railroads, a very large percentage of which are in the hands of the receivers. The wage earner should ask from the public a fairer social and political attitude toward those who are doing the best they can to keep this kind of a situation on its feet and to prepare for rainy days which visit them every once in a while. Industry needs protection from restrictive and destructive legislation, from unnecessary interference, from full crew bills and 'presidential laws'."

Job and Society

"For a great many years I have been trying to figure out the relationship between my job and my society and I have come to the conclusion that the paramount interests of social order and social well being demand that the problem of industry, economic and otherwise, be brought out from the human and personal points of view. Years ago I learned this fundamental lesson on the railroads. In the 80's and 90's there was nothing so cheap in America as the life of a railroad man, and between us, the life of a passenger in those days was not any too precious. It is a good thing for the public conscience perhaps that nobody bothered about records or statistics. All the public cared for was the expansion and business interests until slaughter brought people to their senses."

"But it took more than economics, wages, steel coaches or safety appliances to put a stop to collisions. Believe me, it was the human side of industry, the human side of railroad life that came to the rescue. It was the drawn together and feeling together of managers and men in a common cause that has worked the safety miracle on the railroads. And it was during the stress of that period when the social loyalty of the railroad service was under the pillory of public suspicion, that I, personally, learned to appreciate the fact that industry in America has a soul, as well as a schedule."

"I claim to be socially healthier than the average politician, and socially wiser than the average philosopher, in that I am consistently and persistently an optimist. All my life I have been looking for bright, helpful, cheerful situations and I have usually found them or worked them out. If you do not have this co-operative spirit, this partnership idea, this human side, this attitude toward your work no other plans or economic arrangements on earth will keep industry in America from drifting onto the rocks."

Crisis of Today

"Today we are facing a tremendous crisis in human affairs and we are called upon to do some very serious thinking and to extend to industry as employers and employees, some very practical help. America today, in her foreign and domestic policies, is flitting with the principles of life. She has the biggest undisciplined heart that ever presided over the destinies of a people. The machinery of order, religion and industry are threatened with paralysis. It is the human side, the appeal to common sense, common interests and a common humanity, that must now save industry in America from the fate of social and political Europe."

"It seems to me the present generation is sadly lacking in what you may call industrial appreciation. Industry in America today is a monument to the human heart as well as to the human brain. 'Peace and good will among men,' that is to say a generous philosophy of life, is no longer a mere salutation. Today this noble pronouncement is becoming a sort of clamorous necessity in the social, political and industrial life of the nations. Today you have a spectacle of all that is beautiful, talented, scientific and to quite an extent, economically successful, crumbling to dust in the maw of hateful political relationships. To head off catastrophes of this nature in America, industry must be humanized on the partnership principle along co-operative lines. To bring about this state of affairs we must all start with a generous philosophy of life and this philosophy should be the first educational contribution in any movement that has for its object the welfare of the American worker and the conservation of American industry."

Hake Chowder

Four lbs. hake 32 cents
Onions, Potatoes, etc. 3 cents
Total 40 cents or 10 cents per person.
Note: Prices only approximate and will vary in each locality.

Shin the fish and wash thoroughly. Cut the meat from the bones. Cover the head and bones with cold water and boil one half hour. Slice two small white onions in a pan with four slices of fat salt pork cut thin. When tender skin out the pork and onions; add the strained bone liquor, and one quart of sliced raw potato. Cook for ten minutes; then add the fish, a tablespoon of salt and one half teaspoon of white pepper. When potatoes are tender, add one quart of hot milk which has been thickened with two ounces of butter and flour mixed together. Serve with common crackers.

WAS DIRECTOR OF NAVIGATION COMPANY.

Word was received here last evening of the sudden death yesterday of Thomas W. Carter of Boston. Mr. Carter is well known to a number of Portsmouth people and had been a member of the board of directors of the Piscataqua Navigation Company of this city for twenty-five years.

If there is any news The Herald has it.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR UNION FOR COUNTY HELD CONVENTION

VISITING DELEGATES CONDUCTED ABOUT CITY TO THE POINTS OF INTEREST DURING THE NOON HOUR.

Delegates from Newmarket, Salem, Plaistow, Hampton, Hampton Falls, Greenland and Derry, to the number of fifty, were present in this city on Thursday in attendance at the semi-annual convention of the Christian Endeavor Union for Rockingham County, held at the Middle Street Baptist Church Chapel during the morning

A. secretary; 3:45, closing moments.

At noon a substantial dinner was served for the delegates in charge of this committee, Mrs. Henry Scoville, chairman; Mrs. George Davis, Mrs. Wilbur B. Shaw, Mrs. W. W. Sherman and Mrs. Charles Taylor. The committee was assisted by the Misses Pearl Holt, Anna Seavey, Evelyn Badger, Margaret Bailey and Margaret Rand, who officiated as waitresses.

Following the dinner the visiting delegates were conducted about the city, visiting many of the points of historic interest. A number made a visit to the Portsmouth Navy Yard and visited some of the ships. Members of Troop 2, Portsmouth, Boy Scouts of America, officiated as guides to the visitors. The convention closed in the evening with a social session.

Holding, bleeding, protruding or blind piles have yielded to Doan's Ointment, 50c at all stores.

And at that there were very likely some people who kicked at the weather yesterday.

WOUNDED "TOMMY" ROUTS THREE GERMANS

London, Oct. 12.—Private F. J. Thomson of the Scottish Rifles has just been awarded the Distinguished Conduct medal for an act of great valor while wounded. When a hostile bombing party of three men approached his sap and threw a bomb, wounding him in three places, he jumped out of the sap, closed with the nearest enemy, seized the bomb he held, hit him over the head with it and then threw him over into the sap, where he was held prisoner. The other two Germans retreated, says the official account.

The police reported a very quiet day yesterday and it was just as quiet the night before. Portsmouth is getting good.

Filene's The Filene store in Boston

One of the sights of the city

Probably the largest store in America devoted to the personal outfitting of women, children and men.

Eight stories above ground—three stories beneath; 223 feet frontage on Summer street; 149 feet on Washington street; 150 feet on Hawley street.

In the heart of the business section and reached by direct car line from the North and South stations and from all the principal centres of Boston and vicinity.

Filene's is NOT a department store

There are no leased departments—

From shoe-shining stand to restaurant, every shop or service feature is owned and operated by the corporation.

Filene's sells almost entirely wearing apparel and accessories, grouped in small specialty shops. Filene's has thus the economical operation of a big business—and the intimacy of the small shop.

Every one of these small shops has its own buying staff whose duty it is to know that particular subject thoroughly. This cannot be the case when one person buys for many departments.

THE SUNNY GRAY BABY SHOPS

Occupies half of the third floor. A trained nurse is always there. The babies' shoe shop has the now famous raised chairs for fitting little feet.

THE INTIMATE APPAREL SHOPS

Occupies the other half of the third floor. The corset shop with its unusual fitting service, the undergarment shop with its treasure of Philippine underthings, the silk underwear shop famed for its pure silk Alhambra underwear, the apron, negligee and petticoat shops are all in charge of experts.

THE FIVE FAMILY SHOE SHOPS

Women's shoes, fifth floor; misses' and girls' shoes, fourth floor; babies' shoes, third floor; men's shoes, second floor; boys' shoes, second floor.

THE MISSES' AND GIRLS' SHOPS

A highly specialized group of shops occupying the entire fourth floor.

THE MEN'S AND BOYS' SHOPS

Occupies all of the second and a part of the third floor. A direct escalator isolates them from the women's shops.

AUTOMATIC BARGAIN BASEMENT

A unique basement store operated under a plan that makes everything a bargain. Goods here are reduced at stated intervals and given away if not sold in 30 selling days.

THE WOMEN'S OUTERGARMENT SHOPS

Occupies the entire fifth and sixth floors. One shop specializes in dresses (Filene's Machine-Made) at $1 to $9.50. Another makes gowns to special order. A third sells dresses between the two. The fur shop makes every fur for just what it is. Other separate shops for waists, suits, skirts, coats, millinery.

LARGE SIZES

May always be had in corsets and brassieres, fat ankle shoes, suits, coats, blouses, dresses, skirts, petticoats, negligees, underwear, aprons, stockings.

FOR NURSES, MAIDS

A separate shop for maids' and nurses' uniforms, and a section for caps and aprons.

THE STREET FLOOR SHOPS

Supply the finishing touches. Great Bragel stockings, including one number (28M) which is replaced whenever it wears out if you think it should be. Security gloves, toilet and leather goods, handkerchiefs, bags, umbrellas, inexpensive hats, neckwear.

Filene's service features

THE SERVICE BALCONY

Postoffice, Telegraph Office, Waiting Room, Information Bureau, Lost and Found Articles, Theatre, Railroad and Steamship Tickets, Store Carriers, Personal Service Bureau, Manicure, Hairdressing and Facial Massage. Street Floor Balcony.

RESTAURANT AND MEN'S CAFE

Eighth Floor. Music, No Tipping. Lunch Room in the Basement.

CHIROPODIST

Second Floor. Manicuring can be done at the same time.

SHOE-SHINING

Second Floor.

COBBLER SERVICE

Second Floor. A White Cobbler Shop, equipped with practically every up-to-date shoe machine. Shoes called for and delivered.

FUR STORAGE AND REMODELING

Safe storage with BLOWN-AIR cleaning.

RENOVA GLOVE AND GARMENT CLEANSING

by modern improved processes. Quick service.

SANITARY, NO-TIP BARBER SHOP

One for men, another for children. Second Floor.

FILENE MAIL SERVICE

This department will send to out-of-town patrons sketches of merchandise, or actual merchandise on approval.

WAITING ROOMS

On every floor accessible by Hawley Street Elevators.

EXPRESS ELEVATORS

To restaurant, to seventh, to sixth, fifth and fourth floors.

DIRECT ENTRANCE ON RAINY DAYS

On fair days, too, but on rainy days it is extra accessible to come to a store unharmed. Washington street tunnel and Cambridge subway, direct entrance.

TOURS OF THE STORE

Guides will be furnished to assist in shopping or in sight-seeing. They will explain any features.

AFTERNOON TEAS

With dancing by professional dancers, and music.

A FLOWER SHOP

Just inside the door. Cut flowers and flowering plants.

WHEEL CHAIRS, BABY CARRIAGES

Invalids and women with children may have them merely for the asking.

HOSPITAL

In case of injuries, in case you wish to lie down, or to take young babies there to change their clothes. Eighth Floor.

Filene Mail Service has three useful books ready for those who cannot come to Boston

A book of hosiery, gloves, underwear and other staple merchandise for women and men.

A book of all kinds of clothes for babies and boys and girls up to 14 years of age.

A book showing women's and misses' suits, coats, dresses and waists (revised frequently).

Any or all of these books will be sent free upon request. Merchandise ordered from them will be delivered free.
